WIDEN BREAK IN ROMMEL LINE

Calls for 200 Gas Rationing Volunteers

ADVISORY UNIT SETS UP PLAN FOR 'B' CARDS

Registration For Extra Quota of Gas To Take Place In Period Nov. 12-21.

WORKS AHEAD OF BOARD

Machinery Still Incomplete For County - Wide Registration.

The existence of a gasoline rationing advisory board for Richland county—still lacking official approval but already well into its job—came to light today as the board called for 200 volunteers to handle special gasoline rationing applications.

Members of the advisory board are W. J Spreng chairman T R Sammons and Emerson S Weller Mrs. L. S Hamilton is secretary and Paul English is recording secretary.

They asked for 200 volunteers to work in two shifts daily from Nov 12 to Nov 21 to handle applications of motorists for more than the minimum amount of gasoline granted on "A" cards

How far ahead of the regular Richland county rationing board they are can be seen in the fact that the regular board does not yet have its machinery set up for original gasoline rationing applications, which is scheduled to start Nov. 9.

From the office of W. L Miller, superintendent of schools, however, it was learned that rationing board officials had asked him to send out appeals to teachers to serve as volunteers for "A" registration School teachers handled registration for sugar rationing cards.

Those wishing to volunteer as registrants for class "B" motorists were urged by Spreng today to contact English by telephone at 4121-6

Although Nelson Neff chairman of the county rationing board refrained from giving his approval to this announcement of the advisory board personnel—which has been an 'open secret' for two weeks—he explained that its appointment was authorized by the Office of Price Administration.

James Bailey executive secretary of the county board, admit-

Coffee Rationing Starts at Midnight Nov. 28 and You Will Get a Pound Per Person—Over 15—Every 5 Weeks

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Coffee will be rationed starting at midnight, Nov. 28, at a rate of one pound every five weeks for each person over 15 years old, the Office of Price Administration announced today.

On the basis of 35 to 40 cups to the pound, the ration means slightly more than a cup a day per person.

Retail sales will be halted at mignight. Nov. 21, Price Administrator Leon Henderson said, for a week-long freeze during which grocers will stock their shelves for the start of rationing.

The first rationed coffee will be purchased on the last stamp in the sugar ration book, stamp No. 28. Subsequent rations will be issued by working backwards through the sugar book, using stamps No. 28 to No. 19, in sequence.

The War Production board ordered OPA to take control of consumer distribution to assure an equal supply for all. Henderson said, and attributed the emergency action mainly to "excessive buying by consumers."

"There is no reason for anyone to run to the corner grocer, put the squeeze on him and try to force him to help a hoarder," Henderson declared. "There is absolutely no excuse for hoarding coffee at this time."

Eligibility will be determined by the age shown on war ration book No. 1—the sugar book. If the age shown when the book is issued in May was 15 or older, the holder is entitled to coffee rations; if 14 or younger, the book is not valid for coffee purchases. Use of the book for sugar will continue as in the past.

Allies Hurling Tanks Against Foe In Egypt

U. S. Pilots Step Up Attacks On Japs, Bag 9 More Ships In Solomons.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — American pilots from Australia and the Solomons stepped up their synchronized aerial offensive against the Japanese today while battle-weary ground troops on Guadalcanal held firmly against what appeared to be the beginning of the enemy's all-out drive to retake vital Henderson airfield

Latest front line reports from Gen Douglas MacArthur in Australia and Vice-Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., in the Solomons revealed that at least nine more Jap ships have been blasted and 21 enemy planes and five tanks destroyed.

Despite these encouraging reports, however, the picture in the Solomons remained grim because of fresh Japanese landings on Guadalcanal and the fact that the enemy had succeeded in bringing artillery and tanks into action on the island.

The closest co-operation between MacArthur's forces and navy-commanded units in the Solomons was indicated by advices from Australia which reported that Flying Fortresses had sunk a Japanese gunboat at Rabaul and damaged three merchant ships totalling 12,000 tons

Meanwhile, a navy communique disclosed that American airmen from the Guadalcanal area had shot down 21 more Nipponese planes while ground forces repulsed five fresh Jap attacks against U. S defenses around Henderson field

The heavy aerial assaults against the Japanese from the Guadalcanal area indicated a definite change in tactics under Hal-

New Zealanders Hurtle Through Gap In Axis Defenses.

BULLETIN

AN ARTILLERY OBSERVATION POST IN THE EGYPTIAN DESERT —(INS)— British armored forces slowly but surely forced their way deeper into Italian and German positions on the Egyption battlefront today.

(By United Press)

CAIRO—Reports from the western desert late today said that New Zealand troops had smashed through German lines on the Alamein front, widening the breach which the Eighth army has driven in Marshal Erwin Rommel's defenses

The imperials drove forward through the gap and British armored units pounded up, in an effort to make a clean breakthrough which would force Rommel to abandon his fixed defenses.

More armored forces were being used by both sides in the battle it was reported, but there had still been no major tank engagement.

The British were employing very heavy artillery concentrations to blast Axis forces from their defenses.

American and British war planes ranged over the desert, tempting the Nazi Luftwaffe to battle and for the first time there was an increase in German air activity—largely fighters, seeking to intercept Allied raiding flights.

Tanks were roaring into the gap in support of the hard fighting British Eighth army troops who were machine gunning and bayonetting their way

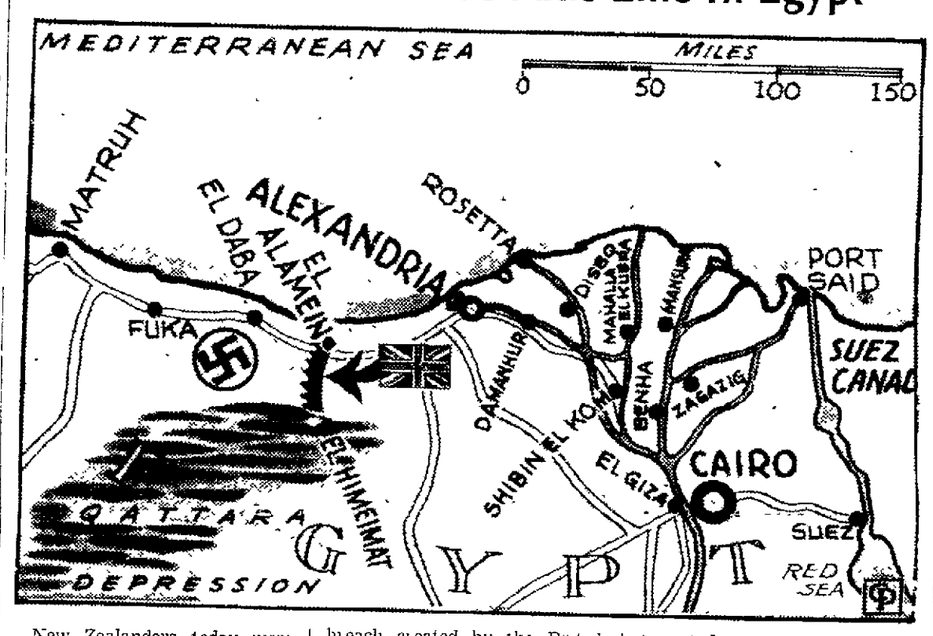
Where British Pierce Axis Line In Egypt



New Zealanders today were pouring through a gap in Field Marshal Rommel's line near El Alamein in Egypt, widening the breach created by the British Eighth army which began its heavy offensive in the bright moonlight last Friday night. Tanks too were reported in action today on both sides as American and British planes continued to dominate the air over the battle area and along the Mediterranean coast

PERILS 2 GIRLS WITH GUN, O.S.R. PAROLEE JAILED

Suspect Captured By Police Posse After Firing Bullet Abducting Girl.

Trapped by a police posse who accused him of firing a shot at one girl and threatening the life of another, an Ohio State Reformatory parolee is in city jail today following a gun foray at the Merry-Go-Round cafe, 246 North Main street last night

Henry Litteral, 26, paroled July 1 from a 10-to-25-year sentence for armed robbery, was captured in front of his rooming house, 669 Springmill street, on the hunch of Patrolman John Gilbert after Litteral allegedly slugged Helen Mosher, 23, during a quarrel in the cafe, and then fired on her as she pursued the gunman and Marjorie Comer on East Sixth street.

The Comer girl was forced to accompany Litteral and two male companions, she said when he threatened her life if she refused to do so. This girl and two men, former inmates of the reformatory, are being held as material witnesses

Notified of the shooting Capt Jesse Schwad detailed Gilbert and Patrolman Richard Hecht, John Steel and Charles Lelizia to the scene Gilbert, sensing Litteral would visit his home posted patrolmen around the dwelling

Shortly thereafter a car bearing the girl and three men drove up As Gilbert blocked the car's path with a cruiser and approached the suspects auto with gun drawn, Litteral reportedly hurled a revolver into a nearby yard and seized a beer bottle. With Gilbert's gun leveled at him, Litteral raised his arms dropping the bottle He was brought to city jail and his companions were held as witnesses

Litteral was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge Sept. 4 following a fight at a north end cafe and again on an investigation charge Sept. 29 police said.

CHARGE: Bagpipes Sound Call To Night Attack At El Alamein

By RICHARD D McMILLAN
(UP Staff Correspondent)

ON THE EGYPTIAN DESERT FRONT, Oct. 24—(Delayed)—The eerie skirl of bagpipes playing "Highland Laddie" sounded in the chill, bright moonlight of the desert before the German lines at Alamein.

Suddenly they were drowned in the reverberation of the biggest blast the desert ever heard as the British opened a barrage with hundreds of guns The British Eighth army attacked and penetrated the German positions at many points By dawn some units were as far as two miles within the German mine fields

Tanks burst through the German outer positions

I accompanied units of the 51st Highland division, which was getting its desert baptism in its first action since it was reformed after the battle of France.

As we headed from the starting line, the clamor became deafening. Hundreds of tanks roared from their concealment in dry stream beds where they had been dug in. Their tracks created miniature sandstorms.

In long lines, and under the tremendous artillery barrage the British massed guns were laying down, they crashed into the enemy lines.

The attack was held at some points but it forced many gaps in the minefields and fierce tank and artillery fighting began within the German lines

HOPE FADES

Ships, Planes Fail to Find Any Trace of Rickenbacker.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Hope grew faint today for Capt. E. V Rickenbacker and seven members of the army air corps who were accompanying him on a secret flight when his plane disappeared somewhere in the south Pacific last Wednesday evening

While all available ships and planes still combed the vast body of water for some trace of the men, war department officials said that no word has yet been received since the ship last reported Wednesday evening that its gas supply was running low.

Officials have not given up complete hope however, as there still is a possibility that the missing men managed to land on some small island or escaped drowning in the rubber boat with which every army plane is equipped.

DECIDE TO BUY AIR RAID SIRENS

Civilian Defense Officials To Seek Council Approval For Purchase.

Approval of the purchase of air raid signal sirens will be asked of council at a special meeting this week, it was announced today by Judge G. E Kalbfleisch, civilian defense coordinator.

James A MacDermid, chairman of the civilian defense technical committee, will explain to council the need for the sirens following a conference Saturday with Kalbfleisch, Service Director Fred B Wolfl and Mayor W. J Locke.

Defense funds now available will be used for this purpose and additional funds will be asked of Richland county, Kalbfleisch said. Defense headquarters on third floor of City Hall are being remodeled out of defense fund allocations.

Recent tests of factory whistles proved they are unsatisfactory, MacDermid says, and last week's tryout of the record transmitter at St. Luke's Lutheran church convinced technical committee members that such equipment

SETS QUOTA OF TIRE RECAPS

OPA to Release 1,000,000 Units to American Motorists.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A quota of 1,090,206 recap tires or recapping services, under which passenger car operators would apply either for recap tires or for certificates to enable them to have their tires recapped, was established today by the Office of Price Administration for rationing in November.

The October quota was 939,940 OPA also increased from 98,755 to 134,470 the quota of grade 2 new tires available to certain classes of war workers when their casings are not recappable.

HEARS ALERT

Mrs. Roosevelt Keeps Right on Talking as Siren Sounds.

LONDON—(AP)—Mrs Franklin D Roosevelt heard her first British air raid alert today while addressing a group of girls at the home counties auxiliary territorial service training center, obviously unperturbed, she continued talking. The girls cheered when she had finished

Earlier, she had visited an ATS base at a Home Counties airport and talked to a group of 22 American girls who are ferrying pilots.

After a visit last evening with King George and Queen Elizabeth in the country Mrs. Roosevelt spent the night at the country home of Prime Minister and Mrs Churchill.

She disclosed yesterday that two of the prime wants of the second AEF, as confided to her by individual soldiers, are thicker socks and more letter from home.

PROBE CHINA SHOP BLAZE

Deputies See Incendiarism In $4,000 Orchard Park Fire; Check Burglaries.

Fire which sheriff's deputies said is believed to have been started to conceal burglary of the place destroyed the Brown China shop at Orchard Park on U. S. Route 42 near Lexington about 2 a m, Sunday.

Loss of merchandise which was not insured, was estimated at $4,000 by Edward H Brown, Mansfield owner. Value of the frame building was not estimated by Mrs Anna Meredith, Lexington, who said insurance was carried on the structure.

At about the same time the fire was discovered by Junior Griffith and Jake Dawson, of Woodbury, passing motorists, it was learned that the restaurant across the street, also owned by Mrs Meredith, had been burglarized. After entering a side window, the thief, or thieves,

Save Your Tin Cans Beginning Today, WPB Urges

Mansfield and Richland county residents were asked today to save tin cans for the nation-wide salvage program

Acting on orders from the War Production board, Carl L Stough, county salvage chairman, urged housewives to save all their tin cans and prepare them for collection later by the salvage committee trucks

Only shiny cans that have not been exposed to the weather are valuable to the war effort, Stough said, in discouraging the collection of cans from junk heaps.

To make them suitable for salvage, the cans must be mashed flat with the foot after the tops and bottoms are removed, the salvage chairman pointed out. The cans should then be placed in a box or barrel and kept in a dry place until the collection truck calls for them Labels should be removed from the cans.

Mansfield Girl Scouts will distribute leaflets to every house in the city in a few days, describing

FIRSTHAND: Tells How U. S. Bombs Spread Hongkong Havoc

(EDITOR'S NOTE J Reilly O'Sullivan, Associated Press war correspondent and an air corps lieutenant in the first World war, was aboard an American bomber Sunday in the first Allied raid of Hongkong He tells here of his bombardier's eyeview of the destruction inflicted yesterday upon the former British crown colony at Hongkong)

by J. REILLY O'SULLIVAN

WITH THE U. S. ARMY AIR FORCES IN CHINA—(AP)—American bombers cascaded explosives on Hongkong early today for the second time in 24 hours, adding new fires to those started in a devastating Sunday assault, and smashed again at the frequently raided Japanese White Cloud airdrome near Canton

After setting the Hongkong waterfront aflame yesterday, Lieut. Gen Joseph W Stilwell's headquarters announced today's raiders destroyed the North Point power station there planting every one of their bombs in the target area

Destruction of the North Point station was a major stroke against the Japanese at Hongkong, for it supplied power to the whole of the island It is situated along the waterfront, about two miles from the district.

During the Japanese siege of the colony last December the enemy was careful not to shell the plant because he wanted it for his own purposes. The Japs captured it intact with their first landing.

At Canton many fires were started and a heavy explosion was noted in the vicinity of the airdrome. Both missions were accomplished today without the loss of a plane despite Japanese efforts at interception.

CHAPTER XXX

On Christmas eve the house that had hummed busily all day was quiet. The same as it had been a year ago with the lighted tree touching the ceiling and the gifts spread beneath it and the fire burning low and Grandmother Hallett and Allison in bed already.

"I can't understand it," Temple, her mother said. "I haven't heard anything from Ron today. Of course I knew they were going to Fran's mother's tomorrow, but I thought that their gifts would come today. They've never failed to come on Christmas eve. But I suppose that the mail has been unusually heavy this year with all the boys in camp"

Resting her tired head on the plum-colored sofa, she said, "Allison isn't afraid now. I didn't know what to say to her when she was in such terror about bombings. I couldn't truthfully tell her that we would not have air raids. It was one of the most difficult things I've ever had to explain to any of you. I never thought I'd have to."

Temple turned her head. "What did you tell her?"

"I tried to build her courage I talked to her what we would do if a bomb fell, how brave and quiet we'd be, how we'd follow the advice of the authorities and what her part would be I passed my first aid course and I told her that she could be my helper. I told her that so much would have to be done for others that we'd have no time to be afraid

"You'd be surprised at how the children are talking among themselves about the war They're so young, but they feel it keenly Allison feels that she would have a job to do and that she's big enough for a job."

Parting the curtains, Mrs. Graves looked out. "It's still snowing and the lights are on in all the windows It seems to me that there are more lights than ever this year Or perhaps we are more conscious of light this year." Looking back at Temple, she asked gently, "Do you know what you are going to do, dear? You don't have to do anything, you know. Not for a long time I'm making out splendidly It was simply a matter of cutting down where the cutting down could have been done years ago. We scarcely miss it and we are all certainly as well fed and as well clothed. All of which proves that it can be done."

"Thanks to your ability to do it," Temple said She smiled at her mother. "I'm going back to Washington. Mrs. Payne, a woman I know there, a friend, will have something for me. It will be a war job of some kind."

"You mean in a factory?"

"It may be. You wouldn't mind that, would you?"

Edith smiled. "A year ago I'd have been shocked at the idea. But not this year. No, Temple, I think I'd be proud this year."

"It may not be that. I don't know what it will be. But this is not a defense area. I couldn't find anything here that I feel I must do now."

Edith nodded. Then she said, "I haven't told anyone about your marriage. I won't until you go. I'll tell Allison and our neighbors and friends and Ron then. They need never know, but I don't feel that would be quite right."

"I want them to know after I go. But condolences would spoil Allison's Christmas"

"It would, but there will be other Christmases Has it occurred to you that not even Pearl Harbor has curbed very much the spirit of Christmas? It's an American spirit, the same spirit that will take us through sacrifices and hard work and losses It's the same spirit, Temple, that will see you through your loss and your sadness. I can't share this with you, dear. I wish I could. One has to accept the inevitable. You can't quarrel with nature and death"

"I'm all right, Mother."

"I know you will be But only in your own mind can you make yourself all right again."

"My own mind knows what is true"

"Then we needn't talk about it anymore."

"I haven't told you all of it Sometime I shall. I'll tell you about it from the beginning to the end and even—after the end."

The sequel of Thalia, she thought

At the sound of a car stopping before the house Edith arose and parted the curtains.

"Someone coming here," she said. "A man . . . He's coming up the steps. I wonder who is coming at this time of night"

Temple went to the door and opened it.

Ron, his broad shoulders flecked with snow, two enormous traveling bags in his hands, grinned at her.

"Merry Christmas! Where's Mother?" He stepped in the hall, dropped the bags noisily, embraced Temple roughly and shouted at the top of his voice. "Merry Christmas, everybody! Hey, where is everybody? Grandmother! . . . Mother! . . . Allison!"

Edith was smiling. "Oh, Ron, I thought—I was afraid—" She put her arms around him and kissed him. "Where's Fran and Ronnie? There's nothing wrong?"

"Wrong? Say, everything is swell!"

Allison, her curly head disheveled, her old pink bathrobe trailing, ran down the steps Grandmother Hallett was putting on her glasses as she followed Allison.

Ron opened the traveling bags, took out gifts, elaborately wrapped, and put them under the tree. When he said he was hungry, they went to the big, old-fashioned kitchen, sat around the table and made sandwiches and drank milk.

Edith said, "But I don't understand, dear. You can't possibly be back in time to spend Christmas with Fran and Ronnie."

He toughed the napkin to his mouth and looked from one to the other with amusement.

"No, I can't We had Christmas this morning at our house—that is, the tree is up and Ronnie got his gifts and we opened all the things from here." He looked at Edith as does a small boy who is about to make a confession. "You see, I'm in the army now, Mom"

They were quiet for a minute . . . just looking at him, handsome but soft

Temple spoke first "You didn't have to, Ron"

Allison cried, "Oh, Ron, that's wonderful! But where's your uniform? Didn't they give you a uniform?"

Grandmother Hallett peered solemnly over her glasses

Edith asked, "What made you do it, Ron?"

He ran his fingers through his hair, took a deep breath and smiled. "Lots of reasons. I was tired of being the boss' son-in-law and living most of my life with my feet under a desk I was tired of pushing little buttons and clipping coupons. I was tired of being 'kept' . . . I was sick of the whole business. I haven't a commission. I'm a buck private—just one of the boys. I didn't want to wait to go through the red tape.

"You see, it's been on my mind for some time, but one night at a bridge party after Pearl Harbor when the talk came up about air raid warden courses and first-aid courses and the like, one of our friends piped up with, 'Oh, let somebody else do it!' That clinched it for me. I didn't want to tell Ronnie when he grew up that I let somebody else do it."

"But Fran," Edith said carefully, "she had strong feelings."

Ron smiled "She kicked up a fuss at first, but—well, you know Fran. It's fashionable to be in on the war effort 100 per cent. It's fashionable, she tells me, for girls to wear their hair short now and wear a uniform and organize things. She's working herself to death learning how to change tires on the station wagon and cleaning spark plugs She's proud of the grease on her hands. All the bridge playing has stopped in her crowd. She's making a martyr out of me . . . It's harmless.

"They mean well and maybe they do help. Fran is darned good at championing. I'm 'it' now. She's sold herself on the idea that it's noble of me to be a private when I probably could get a commission She's okay. How about another sandwich?"

He turned to Allison. "To answer your question, I'm not in uniform because I don't report for duty for another week."

"Then you'll stay and have Christmas dinner with us tomorrow?" Edith asked.

"Sure thing. I wouldn't miss it!" He turned to her again. "I needed the change I'm making. Fran and I need it. We need to miss each other. We need to wait and wonder about each other. What we've had has been too smooth and easy. Besides, there is a war, a pretty big war I want my finger in. I feel better than I've felt in years. Maybe I needed a 'cause,' too, something to make me get up and go. It's a pretty sorry thing when a man actually needs hardship when there is so much of it about for a lot of people.

"I'm not kidding myself. I know it's going to be tough and maybe I'll look back on the picture of myself with my feet under the desk and think I was a fool ever to give it up when I didn't have to. But the thing that guy said, 'Let somebody else do it' made me see red Americans don't wave flags and sing the Star Spangled Banner very much. We get mad with the government and wisecrack about our statesmen. That's one of the privileges of democracy—you can say what you please about it and make jokes about it and write to your senator and tell him what you think of him in no uncertain terms . . . I'm not profound. All I know is that I don't want Ronnie goose-stepping into manhood with a persecution complex . . . And I don't want Fran to be told how many other goose-stepping kids we should have for the government . . . I want to be able to write to my senator and raise the devil with him if I want to . . . That's enough for me. You asked me why I did it. Well, those are my reasons."

BARBARA MENKES WEDS ROBERT S. ELLISON

Ceremony Takes Place Sunday At Home of Bride's Aunt In Newark, N. J.; Reception Held; Couple to Live In Detroit.

AT 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Miss Barbara Menkes, daughter of Mrs. Charles E. Menkes and the late Mr. Menkes of Newark, N. J., became the bride of Robert Samuel Ellison, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Ellison, 488 Shepard road. The marriage was solemnized at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Adolph Augenblick, in Newark. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Goldsmith of Mansfield are uncle and aunt of the former Miss Menkes.

Rabbi Solomon Foster officiated for the ceremony after a program of nuptial music had been presented by Miss Lillian Kent, organist, and Miss Ruth Freed, soloist. Their selections were "Because" and "Ich Liebe Dich." Richard Menkes gave his sister in marriage.

Mrs. Ellison's wedding gown was of floor length white faille and taffeta with inserts of satin. The edges of the sweetheart neckline and long sleeves were scalloped. Orange blossoms held in place the bride's French tulle veil. She carried a Bible to which white orchids had been fastened. The bride's only attendant was her cousin, Miss Lucille Weintraut of Newark, who wore a turquoise colored gown. Mrs. Menkes was attired in a black crepe dress trimmed with velvet. Her flowers were white camellias. A black crepe dress was worn by Mrs Ellison, whose corsage was of purple orchids.

When the couple left for New York City, Mrs. Ellison was wearing a raspberry colored dress trimmed with black. Her accessories were in a matching shade The bride was graduated from a Newark high school and Berkeley School for Girls at East Orange, N. J. A graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, Mr. Ellison attended Hiram college for one year, and received his bachelor of arts and master's degrees from Ohio State university. He is now attending the Wayne university medical school in Detroit, Mich., where the couple will reside.

The Ellison and Goldsmith families of Mansfield attended the wedding.

Carrick-Swander Wedding Takes Place Oct. 24

A double ring ceremony Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Swander in North Fairfield united in marriage Miss Thelma Carrick of this city and Ralph Swander, jr. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Carrick, 656 Bowman street. Rev. William Power of the North Fairfield Methodist church performed the service at 4:30 o'clock before an arbor of ferns and autumn leaves.

Mrs. Swander's wedding gown was of white taffeta and she wore a finger-tip length veil. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, gift of the bridegroom. She carried a white Bible, gift of the pastor, and a bouquet of white roses and blue baby's breath. Attendants for the bride were her aunt, Mrs. Edward Scheerer of Tiffin, and her sister, Miss Lucille Carrick of Sandusky. Their gowns were in blue and pink taffeta and they carried yellow and pink chrysanthemums.

Raymond McLaughlin of Cleveland, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man. Immediately after the ceremony, a reception for 30 guests was held at the home. Friends and relatives were present from Cleveland, Tiffin, Akron, Mansfield, North Fairfield and West Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Swander will live at 393 Wayne street. The bridegroom is employed by the Commercial Motor Freight company.

HAVE HALLOWEEN PARTY.

A group of Scotch friends were entertained with a Halloween party Saturday night at the W. F. McCartney home on West Fourth street. Dancing and group singing were the diversions of the evening. A buffet luncheon was served at a table which held a large centerpiece of fruit. Out-of-town guests were Miss Elizabeth Watt of Cleveland, and John Brown of Akron.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

A Suit's The Thing For Visiting

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer)

WHETHER you are setting out to cover the rest of the football season in grand style or are planning a trip to see your favorite gentleman of the armed forces at his camp, it's a smart idea to take a tip from the ladies who have already done both these trips in a chic fashion.

From looking over the wardrobes of traveling ladies and football fans, this department has discovered that the popular choice for these activities is a suit.

All in Perfect Taste

Though the selections are wide and go according to the type, age and choice of the girls involved, it is still very definitely some kind of a suit that is worn.

Everything from the classic sports suit to the contrasting jacket and skirt and the more dressy style, is in perfect taste and goes well on balmy days alone or under a cloth or fur coat when the weather gets chilly.

The three different styles shown in the above photographs are all excellent for fall and winter activities.

The outfit worn by Jane Wyatt (right) was designed by Rene. The jacket is made of black and white pin-checked wool. The skirt is in plain black. The suit is cut with a shorter jacket and no patch pockets Narrow flaps disguise slash pockets. For jewelry Jane has selected a pair of heavy gold clips and fastened them to the outer edge of one lapel. Heavy gold earrings match, and the gold note is repeated in the warm gold color of the furry beaver hat. There's a touch of white in the stitching of both bag and shoes. The gloves are plain black.

Beanie Matches

Bonita Granville (left) has selected a suit of rust and Havana brown houndstooth check with a beanie to match. Her bag and gloves are brown suede, and her opened-toed shoes are brown with brass knobbings. The skirt can be worn with other jackets and the jacket with dresses or skirts, which makes the suit a practical investment for war time.

The third suit (center) follows a new trend for combining materials. In this case it is wool and velvet. The rich black velvet bindings on the suit dress up the soft Hockanum wool. The short nipped-in jacket is fitted, and is one of the accepted silhouettes in both dresses and suits this season. Very large buttons are an interesting feature of the costume.

IDYLL CLUB.

Mildred Moxley Becomes Bride Of Ashlander

The marriage of Miss Mildred Moxley of this city, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Popin of Crestline, to Pvt. Charles A. Morrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morrow of Ashland, is being announced. The bridegroom is in the United States Marine corps, stationed at New River, N. C.

Rev. Carl B. Craig, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Jacksonville, N. C., performed the double ring ceremony on Oct. 17. For her wedding, Mrs. Morrow chose a brown tailored suit with white accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias.

Pvt. Morrow attended Ashland public schools and was employed by the Trojan Powder company at Sandusky prior to his enlistment. Mrs. Morrow attended Mansfield public schools and is a graduate of the Dickinson Secretarial school. She is employed by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and will reside in Mansfield for the present.

Vows Exchanged At Napoleon, Oct. 17

Announcement is being made of the marriage of Betty Eileen Harden, daughter of Mrs. A. W. Pittinger, 274 South Main street, to Paul Frederick Johnson, son of William Johnson of Amity. The ceremony was performed in Napoleon on Oct. 17 by the Rev. Martin L. Zschoche at his home. The bride was attired in a beige dress with green accessories, and her corsage was two orchids.

Attending the couple were Miss Frances Pittman and Lamarr Ernsberger. Mr. and Mrs. Pittinger were also present. Miss Pittman chose a powder blue ensemble while the bride's mother wore wine velvet with matching accessories.

Have Stew In Meal With a New Pudding

By BETSY NEWMAN

Housewives have found that honey is expensive when used as a substitute for sugar. Corn syrup mixtures often taste a little flat unless some sugar is added, as corn syrup is not as sweet as sugar. These slight handicaps can be overcome by adding part sugar with the corn syrup and using honey occasionally to supplement the sugar supply. Syrups and honey are delicious and add their own flavors to dishes, as well as helping out in sweetening our foods.

Today's Menu.

Beef or Lamb Stew Vegetables
Pear Salad
Honey Bran Pudding
Coffee or Tea

Honey Bran Pudding.

¼ cup butter
⅔ cup honey
1 egg, well beaten
½ cup milk
½ cup bran
¼ tsp. soda
1 cup flour
½ tsp. salt
1 cup raisins

Cream butter and honey together, add milk, egg and bran Sift dry ingredients and mix with raisins; add to first mixture. Combine thoroughly and put into greased mold; cover tightly and steam for 2 hours. Serve with hard sauce.

Chocolate Ice Cream.

1 ounce bitter chocolate
⅔ cup sweetened condensed milk
⅔ cup hot water
½ cup cream, whipped
Few drops of vanilla

Melt chocolate in top part of double boiler, blend in condensed milk and stir over hot water until mixture thickens. Blend in hot water, remove from heat and cool. Add small amount of vanilla and chill thoroughly. Fold in cream which has been whipped to soft custard consistency, add the rest of the vanilla, and turn into freezing trays of refrigerators. Freeze, stirring occasionally, until firm. Serve 6.

DELTA KAPPA GAMMA SOCIETY HAS MEETING

THE home of Miss Virginia Howard, 584 West Fourth street, was the scene Sunday evening of a meeting of Delta Kappa Gamma society. Associate hostesses were the Misses Anita Strauch, Margaret Wheeler and Leona Miles. Miss Helen Hartmann, president, conducted the business session. Reports of the state Delta Kappa Gamma convention which was held recently in Cleveland were given by Miss Hartmann and Miss Gladys McDonald. Miss Strauch reported on the October meeting of the League of Women Voters.

The next meeting will be a guest meeting at the Women's Club, at which time Dr. Allan Griffin, assistant professor of education at Ohio State university, will be guest speaker. Dr. Griffin is a former Mansfield teacher.

HAVE TALK ON HERBS.

A luncheon for 14 members of the Linaneus Garden club was held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel on Friday, Oct. 23. Following this the group went to the Garden Center where a discussion of aromatic herbs was led by Mrs. William Layton. To add to the enjoyment of the discussion members were able to see the various herbs on display there. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. H. M. Spandau on the German church road on Nov. 6.

HOROSCOPE

TUESDAY, OCT. 27

According to the auspicious positions on major planets in today's mundane chart there should be excellent prospects for progress and enduring benefit. While affairs may seem at the start to be difficult and unpromising, with decisive effort, well-organized plans and clever manipulation of opportunities there is every hope of achieving high goals, with cooperation and approbation from the public, from community or from groups.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which their own cleverness, ingenuity and sound and well-developed ideas and objectives may reach high goals of attainment. New projects or novel and original ways of handling old or static situations should thrive. Dare to step off the beaten track. Travel, real possessions, investments and finances should thrive.

A child born on this day may have much ingenuity and creative ability, with novelty, daring, and singular skill.

MR. AND MRS. FOREST A. TAYLOR of Hamilton, Ont., Canada, stayed over night Saturday at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor, Wooster road. They are en route to Zephyrhills, Fla., where they will spend the winter

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I felt as if something icy was coiled inside me as I went around with my father and Dicky to the suite where we had left Stephen Redfield unconscious from Noel's blow and which communicated with my suite by a camouflaged door.

Was it possible, I wondered, that Redfield had already got over the blow and, with bravado inspired by the liquor he had drunk, had come seeking revenge on Noel, or consolation from Mary?

My father knocked lightly on the door of the suite, and Adams, believed by Mr. Milner, manager of the Lansfield, to be his own private espionage agent, but in reality one of my father's most trusted men stationed there as a guard for Katharine and me, opened the door. When he saw us, he put his finger to his lips as he beckoned us inside.

"How is Redfield?" my father asked in muted tones.

"He isn't here," Adams replied in a whisper. "Don't speak aloud. There's a dictaphone in here I've just found that out from Milner"

"Where is Redfield?" my father whispered.

"Milner took him away to another suite; said he could be given better care somewhere else."

"Was Redfield conscious?"

"Yes. He came out of his swoon right after you left."

"I'll want to hear all about it later," my father said. "Just now I must find out what's wrong in my daughter's suite, where I left Mr. and Mrs. Noel Veritzen. They do not answer, although we have knocked loudly several times."

"I'm sure they're all right," Adams said, "but I think they've had a strong sedative. I was going to get somebody not tied up with Milner to go out and telephone you to come over, just as soon as I could."

My father was already headed for the camouflaged door leading to my balcony suite.

"Lock that outer door, Adams," he ordered, "then come with us. If Milner comes back, I'll tell him I ordered you to help me"

Then my father went on into my bedroom, with Dicky and me close at his heels and Adams following us. As I caught sight of Mary, fully dressed, lying upon my bed, I uttered a cry and ran toward her.

"See if she's breathing all right," my father ordered. "Richard, stay with Margaret unless I call you. Adams, come with me."

He hurried into my sitting room with Adams. I bent over Mary noting with relief that she was breathing regularly, but like one who has taken a powerful sedative, then turned to Dicky.

"I'm sure she's all right," I said. "But where's Noel?"

My father appeared then in the doorway.

"He's in this room," he said, sprawled across the couch as if he'd been too sleepy to get any further, but I think he's all right. Is Mary all right? Have you tried to waken her?"

"Not yet, but I'm sure she's all right"

"Try to waken her now," my father directed, "and you Richard, tackle Noel. We'll find out how deeply they've been drugged."

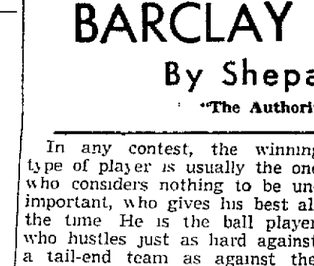
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

In any contest, the winning type of player is usually the one who considers nothing to be unimportant, who gives his best all the time He is the ball player who hustles just as hard against a tail-end team as against the league leader, the military commander who is just as conscientious about a small skirmish as about a major assault, a bridge declarer who tries just as hard for a contract of 1-No Trump as for a game or slam. Victories of any kind can depend on the accumulation of success in minor actions, as well as in the big spectacular ones.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♦
Pass	1 NT

As soon as West saw the dummy, at one table of a pair duplicate where this deal was produced by the shuffle, he realized that a number of tables would probably furnish heart contracts by North and South, since eight cards of the suit were out, including all of the honors, plus some honors in every other suit. Whether those contracts got made or beaten, he could not tell, but at least he had no chance to play against their scores. All he could try to do was beat the scores by others who happened to get into No Trump contracts like his own.

At another table, where West played for 1-No Trump, the same lead was made, the heart 3 and the defenders ran the whole suit. North taking the fourth heart, he switched to the diamond Q at both those tables. Now one careless West saw that he could make his 1-No Trump if South had the club K, as three spade tricks were sure, plus two diamonds and one club Another club would give him his contract. So he won the diamond with dummy's K, laid down the club A and led toward the Q It lost to the K, whereupon a spade to the A and the club J set the contract.

Where there was a more conscientious declarer, he reasoned that North would not have led into that four-card diamond holding, probably, unless he was trying to avoid leading from a club or spade honor, or both He played differently, leading the spade K to the A. The diamond 2 came back to the A, and he chanced a third diamond, which set up dummy's 9. North then led a spade, whereupon three tricks in that suit, plus the club A and diamond 9 made his contract for him. Willingness to do a little simple "negative" card reading had turned the scale.

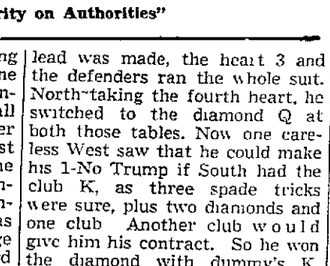
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer. East. Both sides vulnerable.)

If North gets into 6-Hearts on this deal, what principle of defense should tell East the soundest lead to make against that contract?

CHAPTER XXX

On Christmas eve the house that had hummed busily all day was quiet. The same as it had been a year ago with the lighted tree touching the ceiling and the gifts spread beneath it and the fire burning low and Grandmother Hallett and Allison in bed already.

"I can't understand it," Temple," her mother said. "I haven't heard anything from Ron today. Of course I knew they were going to Fran's mother's tomorrow, but I thought that their gifts would come today. They've never failed to come on Christmas eve. But I suppose that the mail has been unusually heavy this year with all the boys in camp."

Resting her tired head on the plum-colored sofa, she said, "Allison isn't afraid now. I didn't know what to say to her when she was in such terror about bombings. I couldn't truthfully tell her that we would not have air raids. It was one of the most difficult things I've ever had to explain to any of you. I never thought I'd have to."

Temple turned her head. "What did you tell her?"

"I tried to build her courage. I talked to her what we would do if a bomb fell, how brave and quiet we'd be, how we'd follow the advice of the authorities and what her part would be. I passed my first aid course and I told her that she could be my helper. I told her that so much would have to be done for others that we'd have no time to be afraid.

"You'd be surprised at how the children are talking among themselves about the war. They're so young, but they feel it keenly. Allison feels that she would have a job to do and that she's big enough for a job."

Parting the curtains, Mrs. Graves looked out. "It's still snowing and the lights are on in all the windows. It seems to me that there are more lights than ever this year. Or perhaps we are more conscious of light this year." Looking back at Temple, she asked gently, "Do you know what you are going to do, dear? You don't have to do anything, you know. Not for a long time. I'm making out splendidly. It was simply a matter of cutting down where the cutting down could have been done years ago. We scarcely miss it and we are all certainly as well fed and as well clothed. All of which proves that it can be done."

"Thanks to your ability to do it," Temple said. She smiled at her mother. "I'm going back to Washington. Mrs. Payne, a woman I know there, a friend, will have something for me. It will be a war job of some kind."

"You mean in a factory?"

"It may be. You wouldn't mind that, would you?"

Edith smiled. "A year ago I'd have been shocked at the idea. But not this year. No, Temple, I think I'd be proud this year."

"It may not be that. I don't know what it will be. But this is not a defense area. I couldn't find anything here that I feel I must do now."

Edith nodded. Then she said, "I haven't told anyone about your marriage. I won't until you go. I'll tell Allison and our neighbors and friends and Ron then. They need never know, but I don't feel that would be quite right."

"I want them to know after I go. But condolences would spoil Allison's Christmas."

"It would, but there will be other Christmases. Has it occurred to you that not even Pearl Harbor has curbed very much the spirit of Christmas? It's an American spirit, the same spirit that will take us through sacrifices and hard work and losses. It's the same spirit, Temple, that will see you through your loss and your sadness. I can't share this with you, dear. I wish I could. One has to accept the inevitable. You can't quarrel with nature and death."

"I'm all right, Mother."

"I know you will be. But only in your own mind can you make yourself all right again."

"My own mind knows what is true."

"Then we needn't talk about it anymore."

"I haven't told you all of it. Sometime I shall. I'll tell you about it from the beginning to the end and even—after the end."

The sequel of Thalia, she thought.

At the sound of a car stopping before the house Edith arose and parted the curtains.

"Someone coming here," she said. "A man . . . He's coming up the steps. I wonder who is coming at this time of night."

Temple went to the door and opened it.

Ron, his broad shoulders flecked with snow, two enormous traveling bags in his hands, grinned at her.

"Merry Christmas! Where's Mother?" He stepped in the hall, dropped the bags noisily, embraced Temple roughly and shouted at the top of his voice. "Merry Christmas, everybody! Hey, where is everybody? Grandmother! . . . Mother! . . . Allison!"

Edith was smiling. "Oh, Ron, I thought—I was afraid—" She put her arms around him and kissed him. "Where's Fran and Ronnie? There's nothing wrong?"

"Wrong? Say, everything is swell!"

Allison, her curly head disheveled, her old pink bathrobe trailing, ran down the steps. Grandmother Hallett was putting on her glasses as she followed Allison.

Ron opened the traveling bags, took out gifts, elaborately wrapped, and put them under the tree. When he said he was hungry, they went to the big, old-fashioned kitchen, sat around the table and made sandwiches and drank milk.

Edith said, "But I don't understand, dear. You can't possibly be back in time to spend Christmas with Fran and Ronnie."

He toughed the napkin to his mouth and looked from one to the other with amusement.

"No, I can't. We had Christmas this morning at our house—that is, the tree is up and Ronnie got his gifts and we opened all the things from here." He looked at Edith as does a small boy who is about to make a confession. "You see, I'm in the army now, Mom."

They were quiet for a minute . . . just looking at him, handsome but soft.

Temple spoke first. "You didn't have to, Ron."

Allison cried, "Oh, Ron, that's wonderful! But where's your uniform? Didn't they give you a uniform?"

Grandmother Hallett peered solemnly over her glasses.

Edith asked, "What made you do it, Ron?"

He ran his fingers through his hair, took a deep breath and smiled. "Lots of reasons. I was tired of being the boss' son-in-law and living most of my life with my feet under a desk. I was tired of pushing little buttons and clipping coupons. I was tired of being 'kept.' . . . I was sick of the whole business. I haven't a commission. I'm a buck private—just one of the boys. I didn't want to wait to go through the red tape.

"You see, it's been on my mind for some time, but one night at a bridge party after Pearl Harbor when the talk came up about air raid warden courses and first-aid courses and the like, one of our friends piped up with, 'Oh, let somebody else do it!' That clinched it for me. I didn't want to tell Ronnie when he grew up that I let somebody else do it."

"But Fran," Edith said carefully, "she had strong feelings."

Ron smiled. "She kicked up a fuss at first, but—well, you know Fran. It's fashionable to be in on the war effort 100 per cent. It's fashionable, she tells me, for girls to wear their hair short now and wear a uniform and organize things. She's working herself to death learning how to change tires on the station wagon and cleaning spark plugs. She's proud of the grease on her hands. All the bridge playing has stopped in her crowd. She's making a martyr out of me . . . It's harmless. They mean well and maybe they do help. Fran is darned good at championing. I'm 'it' now. She's sold herself on the idea that it's noble of me to be a private when I probably could get a commission. She's okay. How about another sandwich?"

He turned to Allison. "To answer your question, I'm not in uniform because I don't report for duty for another week."

"Then you'll stay and have Christmas dinner with us tomorrow?" Edith asked.

"Sure thing. I wouldn't miss it!" He turned to her again. "I needed the change I'm making, Fran and I need it. We need to miss each other. We need to wait and wonder about each other. What we've had has been too smooth and easy. Besides, there is a war, a pretty big war I want my finger in. I feel better than I've felt in years. Maybe I needed a 'cause,' too, something to make me get up and go. It's a pretty sorry thing when a man actually needs hardship when there is so much of it about for a lot of people.

"I'm not kidding myself. I know it's going to be tough and maybe I'll look back on the picture of myself with my feet under the desk and think I was a fool ever to give it up when I didn't have to. But the thing that guy said, 'Let somebody else do it' made me see red. Americans don't wave flags and sing the Star Spangled Banner very much. We get mad with the government and wisecrack about our statesmen. That's one of the privileges of democracy—you can say what you please about it and make jokes about it and write to your senator and tell him what you think of him in no uncertain terms . . . I'm not profound. All I know is that I don't want Ronnie goose-stepping into manhood with a persecution complex . . . And I don't want Fran to be told how many other goose-stepping kids we should have for the government . . . I want to be able to write to my senator and raise the devil with him if I want to . . . That's enough for me. You asked me why I did it. Well, those are my reasons."

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath) Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Buckeye-Badger Game Tops Nation's Gridiron Slate

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Johnny Fike, Y. M. C. A. physical director who led the city softball league through a successful season last summer, is enthusiastic over prospects for a city basketball league this winter.

He reports that four teams are now definitely lined up for the cage circuit: Yuncker Sports, Athletic Supply, Local 758 of Ohio Brass, and Westinghouse.

And he expects no difficulty in adding Blue Goose to this number since that team is still fairly well intact.

Return of the league to the Y. M. C. A. court may be just the shot in the arm which the league has needed.

Big crowds which once saw the league games at the "Y" forced the circuit to move to the high school where the crowds, as the years went on, got lost in the seating space.

Sport fans go to events that appear popular, but when there are more vacant than occupied seats, popularity dies a quick death. And that seems to have been the case the last two seasons with the city league.

The central location of the "Y" gym should help restore the league's popularity among Mansfield cage fans.

Harry Mehock is still chuckling over the district cross country championship won by his Mansfield high harriers at Toledo Saturday.

"When we got there, everyone was saying the race was in the bag for Toledo Waite," Mehock reports.

"But when they told us Waite's best time was 10:47 for the two mile jaunt, I wasn't a bit worried. I knew Jimmy Smith could beat that, under wraps. So Jim waltzes home in 10:37, leading by 16 yards and the race is in the bag."

And Rudy Ringer, assistant manager of Colony bowling alleys, is proud of his organization of a new Victory league for low average teams that like to win once in a while.

"We got so many kicks from these kind of teams—teams that didn't mind losing, but wanted half a chance to win some of the time—that I began checking up," says Rudy. 'And I found seven teams willing and anxious to join a handicap league where everyone has a chance.

"Now we've got a 10-team league, and want two more They should get in touch with us before Wednesday.

"Best thing about this new league is the interest shown by the bowlers," Rudy maintains. "We didn't have one D. H. line in the league scores last Wednesday night. Everyone was there on time and ready to bowl."

Charley Bachman Keeps His Word

EAST LANSING, Mich —(INS)— Coach Charley Bachman, whose Michigan State Spartans scored an upset 14 to 0 triumph over Great Lakes Saturday, is a man of his word And Bachman was still shivering today as a result.

Last week he said that if his outfit beat Great Lakes he would wade through the 50-foot span of the Red Cedar river which flows through the state campus.

While 2,000 spectators watched gleefully, Bachman plunged into the waist deep water yesterday and made good on his remark that:

"We're going to give Great Lakes a battle, but I'll walk through the Red Cedar river at high noon if we beat them."

RECORD CROWD SEEN FOR IRISH-NAVY TILT

CLEVELAND —(INS)—With 65,000 tickets reported sold by Notre Dame for the Irish-Navy game here next Saturday, it appeared today that the third Cleveland game between the two teams may draw an all-time high score of 81,000.

Although the Ramblers will be heavy favorites to swamp the Middies, the two clubs always put up an interesting game. Six times in their 16 meetings the Sailors have lost by a margin of one touchdown or less.

15 Games Booked on Ohio Grids

But Outstanding Tilt Goes To Madison, Wisc.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — This week-end's "big game" for Buckeye football fans takes place on a foreign field, but 15 of the 18 contests on the slate are booked for Ohio gridirons.

The No. 1 battle undoubtedly is the Ohio State-Wisconsin scrap at Madison, Wis, and if it turns out like last season's struggle between the two titans it will be well worth the trip.

A year ago the Bucks triumphed 46 to 34 over the Badgers, as Coach Paul E. Brown and Coach Harry Stuhldreher of Wisconsin, both graduates of Massillon high school, tangled for the first time.

They come up to this one with everything hanging in the balance Ohio, the nation's top-ranking combination, has won five straight, rolling up 165 points to 39 for the foe Wisconsin has defeated five opponents and tied Notre Dame, scoring 92 points to 32 for the opposition.

Wisconsin beat Purdue 13 to 0 Saturday, a week after the Bucks had subdued the Boilermakers by twice that margin, 26 to 0, but no one figures Ohio State is twice as classy as the Badgers.

Here is the week-end schedule:

Thursday night: Western Reserve at John Carroll.

Friday night Illinois Wesleyan at Youngstown

Saturday, Ohio State at Wisconsin (Western conference), Wooster at Mount Union Heidelberg at Capital, Kent State at Bowling Green, Kenyon at Oberlin, Denison at Otterbein and Ohio Northern at Muskingum (all Ohio conference games); Boston university at Cincinnati, Baldwin-Wallace at Akron, Wright-Patterson field vs W Liberty Teachers at Wheeling W Va, Ohio U at Miami, Marshall at Dayton, Bluffton at Grand Rapids, Mich

COLLAPSE OF MINOR LEAGUES PREDICTED

CHICAGO —(AP)— Collapse of Class C and D minor baseball leagues was foreseen today by Bill Webb, supervisor of the Chicago White Sox farm system, by drafting 18 and 19-year-olds for war service.

Webb predicted some 70 ball clubs would fold and only 20 per cent of their 400 players would survive.

Ben Leonard Joins Service

Ex-Lightweight King Will Teach Boxing.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK—(UP)—Snowed under by the football tantare over the week-end, was the fact that Benny Leonard joined the U. S. maritime service as a lieutenant. His immediate job will be welfare director at the Hoffman Island, N. Y., station, where apprentice seamen are trained.

Among other duties, the former lightweight king will supervise boxing instruction and conditioning, a post he can fill admirably.

Leonard was one of the smartest boxers ever to toss leather. And he was such an able all-round fighter that it's still a matter of debate among the old-timers whether he or the late Joe Gans was the greatest of lightweight champions.

Brilliant "Bennah" now 46, wrested the crown from Freddie Welsh in April, 1917, and retired as undefeated champion in 1925, which was a magnificent performance because during those eight years the lightweight division boasted a plentitude of top-flight talent. He was operating in the golden era of boxing that combined good fighters and big gates, as illustrated by the $367,862 and $452,648 attracted by his two bouts with the excellent Philadelphia southpaw, Lew Tendler.

Benny returned to the ring in 1931, after being inactive for six years

Leonard spent seven months at Gus Wilson's old camp, Orangeburg, N. Y., paring off poundage and picking up his boxing in stages. Then he started fighting and went through 24 bouts against fair opposition.

Then came the "big fight" with Jimmy McLarnin at Madison Square Garden, a bout that was expected to pave the way to a title shot with Welterweight Champion Jackie Fields We never can forget that night of Oct 7, 1932. In the second session, McLarnin unleashed a dynamite right that smashed the ex-champ on the side of the head and sat him on the canvas Benny never recovered completely from that punch though his boxing skill kept him afoot until the sixth when the referee stopped the uneven engagement

Leonard said afterwards, "I seemed just as good as new—as good as in the old days—when I entered the ring. But I didn't have the old snap against a big-timer.

Steuber Retains Lead In Scoring

NEW YORK—(AP)—Bob Steuber, left halfback for the University of Missouri football team, annexed 20 more points Saturday and easily retained his grasp on the nation's scoring honors—83 points.

Frank Sinkwich of Georgia, playing only part time against Cincinnati, got three touchdowns, raised his total to 66 points and took over second place.

Gene Fekete of Ohio State, erstwhile runnerup, grabbed eight points in his team's win over Northwestern but skidded to third with an aggregate of 60.

BUYS BOND

FORT ORD, Cal. —(UP)— First dependent allotment check received by a Fort Ord soldier went to Pvt. Tony Contes, driver at the post utilities shops, whose wife received $150. The couple bought a living room suite for their home at Fort Ord village—and a $100 war bond.

GALION BOY HEADS

NEW YORK—(AP)—Jim Secrest of Galion, O., sophomore half-back with the University of Rochester, made five touchdowns against Hamilton Saturday to become the east's leading scorer with 54 points in four games.

HOCKEY STAR HURT

CLEVELAND—(AP)—A fall during the Cleveland-Detroit exhibition hockey game Saturday night fractured the skull of Dick Adolph, Cleveland Barons defense star, Dr. K. H. Begg announced.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Going back, going ba-a-ack, going back to Nassau hall . . . suppose every old grad gets that feeling about his college sometime, but it didn't hit you until you went down to Princeton to cover the Princeton-Brown game last Saturday . . . the place hasn't changed much . . . of course, the walks seem a lot longer now. Those khaki and blue uniforms all over the place. Still, when you were a freshman twenty years ago there were some fellows around who had been in the "Princeton navy" in the other war . . . twenty years ago? Maybe that's why those boys you knew look so broad of beam and thin of thatch now.

The stadium looks the same, except that you sit in a reasonably comfortable, covered press box now instead of out on the hard concrete . . . and you don't have the enthusiasm you had for Bully Dickinson's team back in '22 . . . remember, that was when Bill Roper told 'em, "a team that won't be beat can't be beat" . . . And he was right.

You saw your first Yale game that year, too . . . Princeton wasn't supposed to win that, but Yale couldn't get past the one yard line and you won 3-0 . . . this year's team is a lot like that one . . . these kids weren't supposed to beat Navy or Brown or to tie Penn, but they did it.

Some of the other seasons weren't so successful, but they bring back their pictures . . . when Notre Dame's Four Horsemen came in and handed your Tigers a couple of lickings . . . and don't forget Jake Slagle's great run that beat Yale your senior year, nor the way Ed McMillan and Turk Gates ruined opposing lines.

You're back on the campus again in the quiet of dusk, the crowd gone, and you see Princeton as you like to remember it . . . say, fellow, what are you getting sentimental about? You've lived within 60 miles of the place for 15 years and you haven't been going back.

36-Bar Wins Over Birdies

Three 1,000 Games Are Rolled in A-League.

Paced by Jim Weems' 613 total, highest score in the City A bowling league last night at Colony alleys, the 36-Bar scored a 2-1 win over Bissman Birdie Brands, who avoided a shutout with a 1022 game. Then 36-Bar came back with a 1008 game.

Orange St. Cafe rolled a 1011 game to avoid a shutout by Buckeye Beers.

Farrell Hipp had a 603 total, and Fritz Vogel, who turned in 602, had high game of 241.

KEEPS BUSY

INGLEWOOD, Cal.—(U.P.)—John Echternach makes no complaint about being over-worked. However, all he does is: He's a full-time riveter at the North American Aircraft Corp; a full-time student at the University of California; manager of a "frat" house, thus saving himself room and board.

He is also the salaried business manager of the campus humor magazine.

Bears Headed Toward Title

Probably Meet Redskins In Pro Grid Play-Off.

(By United Press)

The Chicago Bears from the west and the Washington Redskins from the east Monday appeared to be the clubs most likely to play the post-season game for the National Professional football league championship.

With five weeks of the season remaining, the Bears face a faint threat from the never-say-die Green Bay Packers, while the Redskins have a quintet of games remaining — with the Eagles, Cardinals, Giants, Dodgers and Lions—that boasts only one possible troublemaker — Brooklyn.

Chicago's powerhouse yesterday accounted for its fifth victory of the season and 18th in a row by steam-rollering the Philadelphia Eagles, 45-14, before 15,372 at Wrigley Field as the Redskins rolled over the Pittsburgh Steelers, 14-0. It was the fifth victory for each club, but the Bears have been undefeated while Washington has dropped one.

Brooklyn practically eliminated the New York Giants from the eastern race by scoring a 17-7 triumph before 23,244 fans at Ebbets Field, dropping the losers into fourth place, the Dodgers moving up into the second slot.

The Rams defeated the Chicago Cardinals, 7-3, before 7,896 customers at Cleveland as Indian Jack Jacobs' third-period pass to Dante Magnani in the end zone scored the winning touchdown after a sustained drive from Cleveland's 33. Bill Daddio booted a field goal from the 19 for the Cards' only points.

Halfback Andy Uram's 98-yard touchdown jaunt in the final period highlighted the Green Bay Packers' 28-7 triumph over the Lions before 19,097 at Detroit. The Packers scored in every period to hand Detroit its sixth straight setback. Uram took a kickoff on his own 2, with two minutes of the game remaining, tailed his blockers briefly and then cut loose to outdistance Chet Wutterland and score standing up

Brown Looks For Hard Game

Bucks Start Work on Wisconsin Tactics.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The undefeated Ohio State Buckeyes, their injury jinx apparently finally shaken, began concentrating today on tactics that would upset the dark horse club of the Western Conference, Wisconsin's Badgers.

The Bucks clash with the undefeated Badgers at Madison Saturday in a Big Ten tilt which Ohio State Coach Paul Brown believes will be "another mighty tough game." Ohio State beat Northwestern, 20-6, last Saturday.

"We're expecting another mighty tough game because Wisconsin has the same team back that they had last year—only with improvements on both offense and defense," Brown said.

Ohio State outscored Wisconsin last year 46-34

The Buckeyes, barring unforeseen injuries this week, should be in "fairly good shape" for the Badgers. Brown said Paul Sarringhaus, Bob Frye and Bill Willis suffered minor injuries but probably will be ready to go on Saturday.

In addition, Left. Ends Don Steinberg and Dante Lavelli, who have been out most of the season with injuries, are slowly rounding into condition and may be ready to play against Wisconsin, Brown said.

The Wisconsin line, through which Ohio State's backs dashed almost at will last year, has been bolstered by the addition of Fred Negus, 195-pound sophomore center. The Badger offense was speeded with the addition of Elroy Hirsch, 185-pound sophomore tailback.

Charges Dayton With Rough Play

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Coach Clem Crowe of Xavier university claims Dayton's Fliers treated his boys with more roughness Saturday night than the ungentle game of football necessitates.

And Coach Harry Baujan of Dayton is indignant at Crowe's charge that "the Dayton boys went beyond the idea of competition" in achieving a 20-13 victory.

Crow's comment followed news from Good Samaritan hospital that Walter Ungvarsky of United, Pa., a second-string tackle, might be out for the rest of the season with head injuries. The Xavier camp claimed Ungvarsky was hit by a Dayton griddér after play was completed.

The big crowd at the knock-down, drag-out battle between the bitter, long time rivals saw a lot of running plays by first-aid crews from each team. Dayton was penalized 75 yards, Xavier 25.

Baujan accused Crowe of "handing out an alibi" and trying "to make his kids play 60-minute ball."

"His players weren't in shape," Baujan declared After the first half "they couldn't take the gaff," he said.

"Last year when Xavier beat us 27-0, Mr. Crowe didn't let out a peep and neither did we."

Ohio State Lives Up To Number 1 Rating

Big Ten Conference Race Reaches Show-Down Stage Next Week-End

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK — (AP) — With most of their intersectional struggles and non-conference "breathers" out of the way, the nation's college football teams this week begin separating the champions from the also-rans.

The midwest again will have a corner on the so-called "naturals." The Big Ten conference reaches a show-down stage.

Ohio State, which lived up to its No. 1 national rating by knocking off Northwestern, 20-6, Saturday for its fifth victory of the year and the third in the conference, meets unbeaten but once-tied Wisconsin in the day's top tilt in that league, if not in all the land.

Wisconsin topped Purdue, 13-0, in its first conference outing Saturday and moved in among the loop's first three.

Illinois, knocked out of the undefeated ranks by Notre Dame, 21-14, will go after victory No. 3 on a clean conference slate against Michigan, tripped by Minnesota, 16-14. Northwestern will try for its first league win in four starts against Minnesota and Iowa 14-13 winner over Indiana, will tangle with Purdue. With no league opponent to play, Indiana must tackle the well-rested Iowa Preflight Seahawks.

Notre Dame, getting better by the week, moves into Cleveland for a go at a Navy team that has won and lost on alternate Saturdays and was sunk, 21-0, by unbeaten Georgia Tech last week.

The Southeastern conference may find its 1942 champion in the winner of Saturday's Dixie headliner between two unbeaten powers, Georgia and Alabama. The latter was hard pressed to stop Kentucky, 14-0, for its fifth win, while Georgia breezed through Cincinnati, 35-13, for its sixth. Georgia Tech has a non-conference date with Duke, which rolled over Pitt, 28-0, for its second decisive triumph in a row.

Tulane, 29-14 winner over North Carolina, clashes with Vanderbilt and L. S. U., which routed Georgia Pre-flight, 34-0, tangles with Tennessee in other loop tilts.

The east's top-flight encounter brings unbeaten Army against Pennsylvania, which routed Columbia, 42-12, while Army was stopping Harvard, 14-0, last week.

Unbeaten Boston college, 27-0 winner over Wake Forest, catches Georgetown; Harvard battles Princeton, which handed Brown its first defeat, 32-12, and Brown faces Yale.

In the southwest, undefeated Texas Christian, fresh from a 21-0 triumph over the Pensacola Fliers, returns to conference play against Baylor, which nipped Texas A. and M. 6-0. Texas, which pulled out a 12-7 decision over Rice, bangs into another league foe, Southern Methodist.

On the Pacific coast, U. C. L. A., which booted Santa Clara out of the unbeaten ranks, 14-6, faces a stern test against Stanford, 14-6 winner over Southern California. After handing Washington a 19-6 surprise, California meets Oregon.

Scribes Given Break By FDR

Move Out of Philly's Icy Cold Press Box.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK —(INS)— President Roosevelt's decision to move the Army-Navy game from Philadelphia to Annapolis can be written into the history books right now as an outstanding contribution to the welfare of the working stiffs in the press box, who often are referred to by the uninformed as those soft-living sports writers.

The president has thrown a decisive punch against the epidemics of pneumonia and chilblains that almost inevitably follow that game among those in the press coop. He also has curtailed the amount and the number of libations a man must take to keep his innards warm while slow freezing is in progress from toe to scalp.

No matter how cold it may get at Thompson stadium down at Annapolis on Nov. 28—even if every customer in those limited confines is a shuddering frappe from kickoff to finish—it still will be like mid-summer under a southern palm compared with the refrigerator atop the big stadium at Philadelphia This sub-zero place will be everlastingly remembered by all who ever tried to dictate a story through clattering teeth and cold-blue lips.

You haven't felt the bite of Arctic weather until you have lived through an afternoon in that press box. Illumination was provided by the aurora borealis A fellow had to spend most of his time shooing auks and penguins off his typewriter and kicking the polar bears from under his chair. They're pests when you're trying to get some work done and keep from freezing.

You haven't heard the wind whistle unless you have sat up there and listened to it play all the popular tunes with icicles on every note as it whipped in off the icebergs just beyond the stadium walls and as far in every direction as the eye could see from that perch on top of the stands.

Somehow or other they managed to design that stadium at Philadelphia so that the icy blasts hit the press box frontally and whipsawed through it in sort of a cross buck that left all the inhabitants blue by half-time and almost completely rigid — frozen stiff—before the game was over. Some guys didn't leave that press box from one Army-Navy game to the next. They would manage somehow to get out a story on the game they had just covered, then sit like an iceberg through the rest of the winter, and by the time they were thawed out it would be time for the next game.

Fekete Boys Star Again

Gene Scores For Bucks, John For Ohio U.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The heroes of last week-end's Buckeye grid games:

Paul Sarringhaus, who flopped last year as a sophomore halfback for Ohio State, scored 12 points and did yeoman service in Ohio's 20-6 victory over Northwestern.

Ohio State Fullback Gene Fekete, only Buckeye to play a full 60 minutes against Northwestern, smashed over one touchdown and kicked two extra points although the Wildcats were "laying for him." His season scoring total now stands at 60 points.

Gene's brother, John Fekete, scored three touchdowns and paced a drive for another as Ohio university walloped Ohio Wesleyan 26-14. Fekete, Ohio U. halfback, carried the ball 27 times for a net gain of 279 yards or an average of 10.33 yards per try.

Substitute Pete Popovich kicked the extra point that gave Bowling Green a 7-6 victory over Miami.

Quarterback Virgil McNulty pushed over a touchdown and passed for extra point for Rio Grande—the Gallia county school's first score this season. The Rios lost to Marietta 9-7.

Tackle Clarence Ligibel of Toledo blocked Marshall halfback Paul McCuskey's third quarter punt and recovered in the end zone for the touchdown that gave Toledo a 7-0 win over Marshall.

Halfback Benton Wolfe scored one touchdown and passed for another to spark Heidelberg to its first Ohio conference victory of the season — a 20-12 win over Mount Union.

BROOM MAGNET HELPS PROLONG LIFE OF TIRES

Company Develops Device and Suggests Other Ways To Conserve Rubber.

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia Transportation company has a number of practical ideas to conserve rubber — including a plan to save 400,000 miles a year in bus travel and a "magnetic sweeper" which clears roads of bits of iron and steel which might prove harmful to tires.

The mileage was saved when investigators found that buses traveled 400,000 miles a year going to and from their garages between morning and afternoon traffic peaks. Now the carriers are parked near the terminus of their routes until the last run of the day.

Turn-offs, the officials found, could be inaugurated at about 100 points marking the dividing line between light and heavy traffic. Some of the busses on these lines now travel only between the two heavy points, while others make the whole trip.

But the magnetic sweeper, believed to be the only one in the country, is the chief delight of the PTC. Designed by Frank Hingman, superintendent of rolling shops and stocks, it consists of an automatic snow plow equipped with a magnet and huge storage batteries.

On a two-mile test run it picked up 10 pounds of metal—including nails, a corset stay, a meat skewer, scissors, bottle tops, tin cans, a hacksaw blade, razor blades, hair pins, safety pins and cotter pins. Defense plants are clamoring to borrow it now to clean up their parking lots.

GETS ESTATE

GROSSE ILE, Mich.—(U.P.)—The spacious $300,000 estate of R. E. Olds, pioneer automobile manufacturer, is now the Gross Ile USO club.

Besides the 20-room mansion, service men have for their use 55 acres of handsome gardens and grounds.

POSSUMS START RAMBLING

PASADENA, Cal. —(U.P.)— The police department was getting its possum-snaring ready again. The season of back-porch prowlers that turn out to be opossums started the other day when officers were summoned to the home of W. P. Loveland to track down strange noises.

LAND PATROLS URGED TO USE TINY CAMERAS

Army Officer Suggests Ground Units Take Photographs To Aid Action.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Capt. Prentice Morgan of the United States army armored forces strongly urges the use of small cameras for land patrols during warfare. Writing in the Cavalry Journal, he contends that ground patrols could make a good use of cameras as air-patrols, and lists seven circumstances under which speedy photographic service would be invaluable.

He said the army should be equipped with small autonomous scouting units consisting of several small scout cars and manned by trained army photographers whose job it would be to slip behind the enemy lines and photograph bridges, roads, mine fields, etc.

Points Out Numerous Uses.

"With intensive and thorough training," he wrote, "almost any American soldier could be trained to use the camera and its accessories in from two weeks to a month. The circumstances under which the camera might be of value are numerous. Here are some of them:

"1 Bridge and road reconnaissance.

"2. Substitution for field sketches.

"3. Use by scouts behind enemy lines in studying the composition and strength of columns and identifying units and equipment.

"4. Engineer reconnaissance for stream crossing operations, bridge building, entrenching and field fortification operations, including anti-tank installations.

"5. Mine field reconnaissance.

"6. Advanced aircraft landing field reconnaissance.

"7. Recording of intelligence information through photographs of wrecked or captured enemy vehicles, weapons, or dead."

Captain Morgan also stressed the advantage of telescopic and steroscopic photographs for distant objects and to get three-dimensional effects for study. He cited the following possible incident as an example of the potential value of photographs in land patrols:

"A patrol from the reconnaissance battalion of an armored division is given the mission of making a route reconnaissance in anticipation of a possible advance of the division. Specific information as to bridges, fords, roads and identification of the route is desired at divisional headquarters. . . . The patrol, mounted in two, or three quarter-ton trucks, and equipped with miniature camera and accessories, starts on its mission before dawn. . . . At dawn the patrol reaches a stream of considerable width and depth. Investigation shows that there is but one bridge across the stream in the immediate vicinity. This bridge is partially destroyed.

Afford Quick Estimates.

"The patrol leader believes the bridge may be readily made serviceable for the use of the tanks of the division, but not being an engineer, he does not know the length of time or necessary materials needed. He summons the cameraman who in fifteen minutes has taken 36 pictures of the damaged bridge from every conceivable angle. . . . The patrol leader writes a brief report and immediately sends the pictures back to the engineer officer.

"Through the study of photographs the engineer will be able to save much valuable time in estimating the extent of repairs and the size of the crew needed to make the bridge passable."

According to the author, the photography would thus afford the commanding general and his staff means of securing intelligence information almost as valuable as a personal reconnaissance of every inch of the ground over which they were to operate.

KICKED INTO LAKE

BELLEFONTAINE — (INS) — Harold Cameron, Union county clerk, received an unexpected bath while duck hunting at Indian lake. Leaning backward in his boat to shoot a duck, Cameron was plunged into six feet of water by the recoil of his shotgun.

On Page 1 of the paper each day you will find a list of the advertisements to be checked that day.

All you have to do is to decide each day which Large Ad, which Medium Ad and which Small Ad you think will do the advertiser the most good. Just write three names on this blank each day.

$750.00 in awards go to those readers whose selections are nearest to what the majority of readers think. Every week is a separate survey with a dozen or more cash awards each week.

Every member of any family may send in one answer each week and there are many awards each week, but only one award for a good answer will go to any one family in any one week.

You are NOT required to write a letter to receive an award.

The awards are decided on the selections above. We would really appreciate it, though, if you would write a note saying what you DO NOT LIKE and . . . also . . . WHY YOU LIKED some of the good ads.

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards . . . but . . . they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

Your criticisms and suggestions will be given to the merchants to help them to improve their advertisements BUT the merchants will NOT be given the names of those who write the letters. This is so you may say just what you really think without embarrassment.

LARGE BLOCKS OF RAILS SOLD IN STOCK MART

Scrap Metal Drive Exceeds Expectations But Full Result Not Yet Known.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Rails changed hands in fair sized blocks in today's early stock market dealings and prices edged a little higher for some of the leaders. Industrials were quieter with price variations narrow.

Fractionally ahead at the opening were N. Y. Central and Chesapeake & Ohio. Unchanged to slightly lower were Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Union Carbide, U. S. Steel and Standard Oil (N.J.). American Telephone had a rise of ⅞ on the initial transaction.

The metal scrap situation continued a matter of keen interest to students of industrial trends.

The magazine "Steel" reported that results of the nationwide scrap drive sponsored by the country's newspapers "exceeded expectations in many districts" but added that "some time will elapse before the full effect of the campaign is seen in the steel making area."

ZANESVILLE —(INS)— William H. Maddox, of nearby Roseville, died at his home yesterday. A 32nd degree Mason, he was prominent in all Scottish Rite and Masonic bodies.

THEATERS

Musical Show.

Based on the Broadway musical show by the same name, "Panama Hattie," showing at the Ohio teams Red Skelton and Ann Southern. Pretentious production numbers fill the show that has to do with a sailor and a night club singer. Rags Ragland and Ben Blue appear as two sailor buddies of Skelton and the cast includes Lena Horne, colored singer. Alan Mowbray and Marsha Hunt. Cole Porter's music enlivens the production.

Sparkling Comedy.

A small town girl disillusioned by Broadway starts back to Iowa in "The Major and the Minor," the Madison attraction, but not before she meets an attractive young major who changes her plans. Ginger Rogers plays the girl who masquerades as a 12-year-old in order to travel half-fare while Ray Milland portrays the major who isn't entirely deceived by the pose. Robert Benchley and Lela Rogers are in the cast. "Apache Trail," with Lloyd Nolan and Donna Reed is the second attraction.

Career Story.

A sophisticated career woman hires a personable young man to act as her secretary and then proceeds to fall in love with him in "Take a Letter Darling," showing at the Ritz. Rosalind Russell and Fred MacMurray have the leading roles and the cast includes Robert Benchley as Miss Russell's business partner. MacDonald Carey and Cecil Kellaway. "Maisie Gets Her Man," with Ann Sothern and Red Skelton is the second picture.

Musical Western.

Gene Autry's musical western, "Call of the Canyon," heads the bill at the Park. The singing cowboy appears as spokesman for a cattlemen's group which falls in the hands of an unscrupulous packing company. Ruth Terry plays opposite the star and the cast includes Joe Strauch, jr., and John Harmon. Lum and Abner's "The Bashful Bachelor," with Zazu Pitts is the second production.

CALLS FOR 200 VOLUNTEERS ON GAS RATIONING

Registration For 'B' Cards To Take Place During Period, Nov. 12-21.

ted that no confirmation of the appointments had yet been received from the state OPA headquarters. Neff said that approval of the local civilian defense council was not necessary in such appointments.

Indicating a vigorous attitude by the new board to properly and immediately determine gasoline rationing functions, Chairman Spreng announced that volunteer works will be assigned to two shifts 12 noon to 5:30 p. m. and 5:30 to 9 p. m. to serve during the Nov. 12-21 period at John Simpson junior high school gymnasium where "A" card holders will make application for special cards entitling the holder to additional motor fuel.

Registration for "A" cards will start Nov. 9 in Mansfield and county schools.

Immediately upon receipt of instructions, Spreng said, school sessions will be held for the volunteers "in order that each will know his or her business when rationing starts."

According to Bailey and Neff the advisory board does not supplant the regularly appointed gasoline panel within the rationing board which is composed of Lloyd Dillon as chairman, Neff and William Pritchard.

Under tentative plans the advisory group will maintain a hostess service and three lines of applicants—salesmen, general applicants, including war workers, and non-road users such as farmers having tractors and other gasoline-consuming farm equipment.

In Washington today OPA announced the elimination of all types of salesmen from the preferred mileage class. "C" ration cards may be issued to certain maintenance and repairmen provided that "transportation is not sought for purposes of selling, merchandising or promoting."

Occupational driving will be conditioned on ride-sharing regulations requiring at least three other persons in a car or only where adequate feasible alternative means of transportation are unavailable.

The "C" card is for persons who require more than 470 miles of driving a month. Those who are eliminated from the "C" group will be eligible for a "B" card, good for driving up to 470 miles a month.

A list of 20 preferred automobile uses was made public. OPA said that although the present eastern gasoline rationing plan lists 14 groups, fewer persons will be eligible for "C" cards under the new program. The increase in the number of eligible groups has resulted in part from splitting present groups for purposes of classification.

Under the new plan, all types of salesmen are eliminated from the preferred user class. Also excluded are newspaper photographers and men carrying portable wire photo equipment, an OPA spokesman said. In the category which included these two uses, only newsreel photographers still are eligible for preferred mileage.

OPA said that even where there is a pooling arrangement, no supplemental ration will be issued if it is found that the area is adequately served by other means of transportation. No more than 470 miles of occupational driving will be allowed unless the applicant is in one of the preferred mileage classifications.

The new plan provides preferred status for the collection of scrap material and for certain Red Cross workers. It also gives the same status to teachers.

The Difference In Funeral Services . . .

The more observing know that the services of all funeral directors are not the same.

People are paying more attention to the services they receive. They realize that much of the cost and most of their satisfaction—or disappointment—is due to the service.

Those who prefer the services and appointments provided by this organization will find that costs are no greater here than elsewhere. Nor is there any extra charge for the use of our Funeral Home.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I wish some literate Broadway producer would whip out an eastbound magnet (thousand-dollar bills might be just as good), and drawing Monty Woolley back from cinemaland, install him behind the footlights in something chic and wittily outrageous. Looking over the theatrical season to date, it occurs to me that the menu affords low comedy, light comedy, and musical comedy, but nothing of the type that combines sparkle with strong flavor and might be called impolite drawing-room comedy. I think something by Moss Hart and Sam Behrman, starring Woolley and Ina Claire, might be the dish.

It seems to me that never in the history of Gotham has there been so many soothsayers, handwriting experts, palm readers, crystal gazers, astrologers and occults in the town's cafes as at this moment. The Monte Carlo beach has a turbaned swami accompanied by rice birds. Armando's has a sybil. Tony's Trouville boasts a seer, and Cerutti's can furnish you with a peeker-into-the future while you sip your mint julep. There is even a rumor that Nedick's hotdog stand may install a sand reader. Taking the cake, however, is the fortune-teller at the Copacabana, a belle whose frighteningly blond hair sweeps straight up from her forehead ceilingward in a coiffure right from the Land of Oz. I'm not terribly curious to hear about my future, but I certainly wish she'd tell me one thing—how she keeps that pompadour up!

There is a touch of feudal magnificance in the way the various name bandleaders, upon enlisting in the services, have taken with them considerable portions of of their orchestras. Rudy Vallee's entire band followed him into the coast guard, and Glenn Miller took quite a sizeable part of his crew into the army. On the whole, the practice is stirringly reminiscent of medieval days when a liegelord went off to battle with his faithful fiefs and vassals accompanying him. Some special heraldic device seems called for in this situation — perhaps a saxophone rampant on a field of 802 cards.

I can't think of anything about the scrap drive that appealed to me more than the collection of old keys. I have had, for years, about a dozen keys ranging from locket to a hotel-door size, which kept cropping up in my life and my bureau drawers like decurrent annoying question marks that I hadn't the nerve to drown or toss out of the window. Does this belong to the jewel case or the makeup box? I would ponder. Does this fit the five-year diary or the silver chest? Is this the key to the Ritz in Boston or the apartment on 54th street? I never knew and I never really cared, but I never dared to get rid of the darned things—UNTIL Uncle Sam came along. Now I have given everything but the key to the current front door to Uncle Sam, and from here on I will open anything that is locked with a hairpin.

If the army is wondering how best to use its new soldier, Pvt. William Saroyan, I have a slight suggestion to offer. Towit: Put Bill to work writing those military communiques. His talent for beautiful but baffling phraseology is ideally suited to these dispatches. He would see to it that they made fine reading . . . Poor Morton Downey! Here he is making the grade as a singer of sophisticated songs in the urbane atmosphere of the Savoy-Plaza Cafe, and what is it that brings down the house faster than anything? Faith, and ye guessed it. It's the warbling he does in brogue to the tune of "The Same Old Shillalah" and such like. Very discouraging to a man-about-town—but good box office.

No one seems to have noticed it, but blackface has gradually disappeared on the stage and in the vaudeville houses of America—particularly in this vicinity. The last glimpse of it was given by Eddie Cantor, briefly, in "Banjo Eyes," but its famous exponents—Al Jolson, Eddie and Lou Holtz—have discarded the burnt cork in their work. Eddie Leonard is gone, and so had Buddy Doyle, and Irving Kaufman, who began with the Dockstader minstrels, is now a network singer under the pseudonym of Happy Jim Parsons. Not a cafe or theater in New York currently offer a blackface act. End of an era, I suppose.

OHIO GOVERNOR CANDIDATES ON WIND-UP TOURS

McSweeney, Bricker to Climax Last Week of Campaign With a Debate.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Ohio's gubernatorial candidates — Gov. John W. Bricker and former Congressman John McSweeney — launched intensive last-week speaking tours today to add the finishing touches to their election campaigns.

Populous northern Ohio, Cleveland and Cuyahoga county in particular, drew the bulk of attention, although both nominees were slated for appearances in Cincinnati. McSweeney will broadcast addresses on local radio stations each night this week, while Bricker will make his regular Monday night speeches over a state-wide radio hookup.

Climax of the campaign will be the face-to-face meeting of Bricker and McSweeney to debate the campaign issues before the Cleveland City club Saturday.

Bricker, in Cincinnati today, will attend a rally in Dayton tonight. His weekly broadcast will originate in Dayton. The governor will attend a series of Navy day meetings in Lakewood and Cleveland Tuesday, address rallies in New Philadelphia, Canton and Akron Wednesday, ward meetings and the Kiwanis club dinner meeting in Cleveland Thursday, a teachers' meeting in Cleveland and a rally in Toledo Friday, and an Ashtabula county rally Saturday after the Cleveland debate. Sunday he will be in Cleveland all day and return to Columbus Monday for his radio address.

McSweeney starts the stretch drive appearing at the Lake county rally in Mentor and a round of meetings in Cleveland. Tuesday he goes to Chardon, Ashtabula, Conneaut and Youngstown; Wednesday to Alliance and Akron; Thursday to Steubenville; Friday to Cincinnati; Saturday and Sunday to Cleveland, and Monday to New Philadelphia, Millersburg and Stark county.

CANTON— (AP) —Asserting an unsigned letter "questioning my labor record" is being circulated throughout the state, John McSweeney, Democratic candidate for governor, scathingly denounced this as "a dastardly accusation."

"If there is anything I hate, it is someone who would write letters of this kind without signing them," he declared last night at a rally sponsored by Stark county AFL, CIO and Railroad Brotherhood leaders.

Up and Down the Street

In order to determine Richland county's water supply the Ohio Water Supply board contemplates a survey of sources from which water is pumped and how adequate the supply is in dry times. A water table survey is being made over the state through county agricultural agents. On an average Ohio receives 37.92 inches of rainfall annually but not all of this is available through wells since some runs off, evaporates, is taken up by plants and trees or otherwise disposed of. The purpose of the survey is to forestall water shortages and any rural home may be visited soon by surveyors.

When the boys and girls of Country Day school grow up they probably won't have much trouble when it comes to entertaining and preparing for a party. They get experience each time a special day pops up on the calendar and right now they are preparing for Halloween. Everything from food to costumes is being made right at the school for the affair scheduled for Friday afternoon and the preparations include baking dozens of cookies for the event.

Although those brilliantly colored masks and designs in the second floor show case at Senior high school look like Halloween decorations, Miss Mary Jane Bellore, art teacher, explains that they are handiwork pieces of her art classes. The paper-mache faces of witch doctors, savages and other eerie personalities lend the Halloween theme. In addition, there are several modern art designs in vivid colors and soap carved animals similar to Walt Disney's cartoons.

News-Journal staff members won two honorable mentions in addition to a $10 prize award at the Ohio Newspaper Women's association convention in Cincinnati over the week-end it developed today. Esther Smith won an honorable mention for a story concerning the achievements of a woman and Betty Strother, society editor, won an honorable mention for coverage of a public speech. Miss Smith's story on Russell Jelliff, former Mansfielder who directs Karamu House in Cleveland, also was praised as "excellent" by Harlan Logan, editor of Look, who was judge of the triple entry contest, a feature, a human interest story and a straight news story—in which the story was entered.

GERMAN-BORN AMERICANS IN COURT TODAY

Six Relatives and Friends Are Accused of Helping Executed Spy.

CHICAGO— (U.P.) —Six German-born American citizens, accused of treason, go on trial in federal court today for allegedly giving aid to one of the eight Nazi agents who were brought to the United States by submarine last summer on a sabotage mission for the German Gestapo.

The defendants are relatives or friends of Herbert Hans Haupt, 21-year-old graduate of Chicago public schools, who was executed Aug. 8 with five of his accomplices after a trial before a military tribunal.

Haupt's parents, Hans Max and Erna Haupt; his uncle and aunt, Walter and Lucille Froehling, and two friends, Otto Richard and Kate Wergin, were ordered brought to trial today under an indictment returned Sept. 4. It charged they aided him with 41 overt, "felonious and traitorous" acts.

The case is the second under a treason indictment to be prosecuted during this war. Max Stephan, Detroit road house owner, was convicted recently on treason charges and sentenced to hang Nov. 13 for helping a German aviator who escaped from a Canadian prison camp. Although there were several treason prosecutions during the first World war, Stephan was the only person convicted for treason since the Pennsylvania whisky rebellion in 1791.

Ernest Peter Burger, Nazi agent who was sentenced to life imprisonment after he reportedly testified for the government during the trial at Washington, will be brought to Chicago under guard for the trial. It was understood that the government would not offer testimony of George John Dasch, the other saboteur who escaped death.

PLAN POST-WAR ROADS PROGRAM

Officials Arrange Projects To Cushion Economic Bow After War in Ohio.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Highway Director Hal G. Sours said today a large-scale program of road building had been drafted to cushion any post-war economic blow.

Remembering that "this country entered a depression period after the last war almost totally unprepared," Sours said his department would be ready to launch construction when the present conflict ends.

He asserted there were insufficient plans for sound projects under former public works programs and that "consequently much public money was spent on projects hastily conceived and prepared."

"This mistake must not be repeated," Sours told Gov. John W. Bricker in a four-year review of the highway department. "Sound planning in time will avoid waste.

"The department of highways has a large program of such needed improvements under way in out post-war planning program."

Sours said that during the last four years 17,138 miles of road either had been built, resurfaced or improved in Ohio. This did not include, he said, 194 miles of new strategic military roads that cost $17,700,421, or 263 miles of resurfacing or widening strategic routes at a cost of $3,425,836.

With gasoline rationing ahead Sours predicted a 35 to 40 per cent decrease in gasoline tax income next year, and possibly a 10 per cent loss in money from vehicle licenses.

"Ohioans may be proud of the new highways," Sours said. "In location, design and construction they compare favorably with the best in any state."

OPA FIXES BOOST IN PRICES FOR ALL ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The "hard likker" fraternity got short shrift today as the OPA authorized a boost in practically every item on America's bar bill except draft beer.

The prices go up Nov. 1 as result of increased federal excise taxes.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson ruled, however, that the amount of the tax per glass on draft beer is too small to pass on to the consumer.

The $1-per-barrel tax increase on beer will come out of your pocket only on the bottled variety, with the retailer adjusting his price to the nearest cent on single or multiple bottle sales.

If the increase amounts to 1-3 cent per bottle, it would be one-cent on three bottles.

And on other items, look out. Everything from packaged liquor to a "straight drink" at the neighborhood taproom is going up under OPA's formula for passing on to the consumer the higher tax.

Bars are authorized to increase their prices for a two-ounce jigger of 90-proof domestic distilled whisky by three cents per "straight" drink.

"Straight" liquor is the only type of "hard" drink at the bar or restaurant which is under March price ceilings. Cocktails and highballs are not under price control. Prices of the latter will be boosted by the retailer according to the increased cost of the ingredients.

OPA officials stressed the fact that the increased excise tax on packaged domestic whiskys will be based on a proof—or alcoholic content. While the raised levy on 100-proof bonded whisky will be $2 a gallon, it will be only $1.80 on 90-proof whisky and $1.60 on the 80-proof brand.

TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. W. G. Walter, 61, Dies After Brief Illness.

Mrs. William G. Walter, 61, of 96 Massa avenue, died Sunday in General hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Walter was born in Loudonville, but had lived in Mansfield for the past 35 years. She was a member of St. Peter's Catholic church and Catholic Ladies of Columbia.

Her survivors are, beside the husband: one daughter, Mrs. Thomas A. Dillon, of Mansfield; one sister, Mrs. Sadie Burghard, of Mansfield; and one brother, Sherman Wolf, of Loudonville.

Funeral services will be conducted at St. Peter's Catholic church in Loudonville at 10 a. m. Wednesday. Rev. Edward Kirby will be in charge. Burial will be in the Loudonville Catholic cemetery.

The body will be at the daughter's home, 324 Sturges avenue, until time of services.

GOES TO JAIL

Shelby Man to Stay Until He Pays Or Serves Out Fine.

Harley Vochel, 130 Second street, Shelby, was committed to the Richland county jail this morning to stay until he pays, or serves out an old fine and costs totaling $196.50.

Vochel, who has just completed serving out a fine assessed in Municipal court for intoxication, was jailed today on a state's affidavit as an outgrowth of an automobile accident Nov. 7, 1941, when he was convicted of drunken driving. Part of the fine imposed at that time was suspended on his promise to pay damages. These damages remain unpaid, according to the committment papers.

ILLNESS ENDS IN DEATH AT 88

Alexander Koroknay Succumbs At Home; Rites Tuesday.

Alexander Koroknay, 88, died Sunday at his home, 339 Ohio street, following an illness of several weeks.

Born in Hungary, Mr. Koroknay had been a resident of Mansfield for the past 50 years.

His survivors include his wife, Elizabeth; four sons, Carl, now serving in the air corps; John, Alexander, jr., and Anthony, of Mansfield; four daughters, Mrs. T. C. Appleman, and Misses Helen, Barbara and Martha Koroknay, of Mansfield; and one grandchild, also of Mansfield.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 p. m. Tuesday at the Wappner funeral home with the Apostolic Christian church in charge. Burial will be in the Lantz cemetery. The body will remain at the home until the funeral hour.

Guards Posted As Workers Put Final Touch To Ohio Dam

YOUNGSTOWN —(AP)— Dedicated as an "example of one good thing that has come out of the war," the new $6,600,000 Berlin dam today was placed under guard while workmen rushed its completion.

The public yesterday got its last look at the project for the war's duration. Some 15,000 persons turned out for dedication ceremonies at which Gov. John W. Bricker declared the dam would help the steel industry increase war production and for a longer time would help solve the problem of the receding underground water table.

Built under the supervision of army engineers, the dam will impound waters of the Mahoning river northwest of Berlin Center.

When it's gates are closed, the river will be backed up over a 10-square-mile area extending southwestward to Alliance. The 6,500-acre reservoir will hold 28 billion gallons of water.

In obtaining a congressional appropriation for the project, Youngstown civic leaders and steel executives asserted 100,000 tons of production were lost last summer when the river was low and its waters too hot for efficient operations.

WIDOW, 87, DIES

Mrs. Florence Shaw Lived In Ashland County Entire Life.

ASHLAND — Mrs. Florence J. Shaw, 87, widow of William Shaw, died at 11 p. m. Sunday at her home in Savannah. She had been in failing health for the past year and seriously ill for a month.

Life-long resident of Ashland county, Mrs. Shaw was born Feb. 16, 1855, in Orange township. Her husband died five years ago. She was a member of the Presbyterian church at Savannah.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at the family home in Savannah. Rev. E. K. Barss, pastor of the Federated church in Savannah, will officiate. Burial will be in the Savannah cemetery.

Surviving are one son, D. R. Shaw, Ashland R. D. 2; three daughters, Mrs. G. Roy Crumrine of Nova and Misses Grace and Lucina Shaw, both at home; three sisters, Mrs. D. N. Anderson and Misses Elizabeth and Alice Ralston, all of Ashland R. D. 2, and four grandchildren.

Now It's WOW's, They Are Women Ordnance Workers

CHICAGO—(INS)—The WOW'S, a brand new women's organization with snappy two-piece khaki uniforms and overseas style caps, boasted today a membership of 500 with a hope on the part of the founders it soon will expand into the thousands.

The alphabetical designation of WOW perhaps is sufficiently descriptive of the sprightly new organization, but the letters stand for Women Ordnance Workers, Inc.

The WOWS were organized in the plant of the Hurley Machine company, which is engaged in war production. The girls expect their organization to become nationwide among the rapidly growing number of women employed in ordnance plants.

One of their first activities was to collect $200 for Christmas boxes to be sent men in the armed forces.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

To increase your admiration for the movie technicians, take the usual tourist's ride up the elevator to Radio City's observation tower. After your innards have rejoined your outwards (taking the next elevator, of course) you look around and what do you see? A forest of skyscrapers, beautiful but unreal—cut from cardboard and ranged with artful regard for perspective. On a movie set with a skyscraper backdrop you see the same, only in miniature. . . . And the movie set is more convincing because the reality is beyond belief. . . .

To all who have said "New York is a grand place to visit but—" it is always a shock to discover anew that people do live here and what's more they like it. They live, some of them, in the most incredible places—like my friend whose apartment is four flights up (by foot) in an old brownstone on a street whose ground floors now are given over to the jingle-jangle-jingle of hot night spots. She lives quietly there. One room (with studio couch), a "kitchen" where it is not safe to stoop when the stove is hot, a bath, a fireplace. Her own "things"—pictures, books, desk, are there, and it is home. She has her Victory "garden" at her window—a carrot, some parsley, herbs. She looks into deep pits of brick—neighbors' "back yards"—where morning glory vines climb for the sun. None of the street's hey-hey rises.

It was not always thus. Once, she says, she had a front apartment. The night club clamor rose faintly, but at 4 a. m. the garbage cans began clanging. She took pen in hand. "Dear Commissioner Valentine," she wrote, "I know to a man concerned with arson, rape and murder the slumber of one poor citizen can be of little moment but—my dear Commissioner Valentine, they are driving me CRAZY!"

Amazingly, to strangers who suspect that New York's madhouse careens on its hectic way without supervision, this plea of one lone cliff-dweller was heard. Next day, the garbage cans were silenced. . . .

DOCTOR HELD

Police Find Him Sobbing Beside Slain Woman.

EAST HAVEN, Conn.—(AP)— A man found lying across the body of Mrs. Jessica Garrup, screaming, "You can't die, Jessica! I love you!" was held without bail on a coroner's warrant today pending investigation into the shooting of the 27-year-old attractive blond nurse.

The man, said Coroner James J. Corrigan, was Dr. Robert F. Kurz, a middle aged New Haven chiropractor whom East Haven police found sobbing hysterically over her body as they entered a shore cottage here late yesterday in response to an anonymous telephone tip.

Corrigan said Dr. Kurz, married and the father of two children, denied killing Mrs. Garrup but admitted ownership of the .32 calibre pistol with which she was shot in the abdomen.

SEEK WPA MEN FOR WAR EFFORT

Officials Would Take 50,000 From Relief Agency.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The work projects administration, one of the New Deal's depression agencies, is engaged today in reclassification of its 375,000 workers with a view to providing 50,000 workers for war industries.

Training WPA workers for war jobs has been in progress for several months, Brig. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, federal works administrator and acting commissioner of work projects, said. That effort has reduced WPA employment from 400,000 to 357,000 during the last four weeks.

WPA now is training 25,000 enrollees for war jobs and the new classification is expected to double that number.

ALLIES WIDEN GAP IN AXIS EGYPTIAN LINE

New Zealanders Rip Through Defense as Both Sides Begin Using Tanks.

into the positions of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis troops.

The enemy counter-attacked furiously, a British communique said, but had been unable to dislodge the imperials from the positions they had won, even though they brought their tank forces into action.

Eighth army forces hammered forward through the gap in Rommel's defenses, intent upon delivering a second major blow to the Axis army.

The attack started with a huge barrage, laid down on the pattern and with the weight of the famous pre-attack barrages of the western front in the last war.

It was followed up by tanks, armed with heavy-hitting guns, which drove forward in an attempt to engage Rommel's main armored forces. However, so far it was understood the Germans have employed only medium-sized tank detachments.

American army headquarters reported that U. S. fighters, fighter-bombers and medium bombardment groups carried out "large scale" attacks on Axis forces.

The chief target of the American planes was Axis air installations.

American planes were credited with shooting down four of seven Axis fighters destroyed over the battle area yesterday.

Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery's Eighth army was fighting under an umbrella of British and American planes which enjoyed complete air superiority. They were throwing back every attempt by the Africa korps to dislodge them from the positions they had already won in their two-day-old offensive to wrest North Africa from the Axis.

A joint communique of the middle east command and the Royal Air Force said, there were a number of land engagements yesterday while large-scale Allied air attacks continued in the battle area.

The ferocity of the Allied offensive, begun Friday night under the light of a full moon, was attested by the fact that up to 6 p. m. Sunday, 1,450 Axis prisoners had been taken.

Front reports disclosed that heavy tanks, including numbers of American-built General Grants, had been thrown into the fighting, and a major tank clash appeared increasingly imminent.

The battle, aside from the heavy fighting by the polyglot forces of the Eighth army inside the German front positions, appeared still to be dominated by the air forces.

"Large scale Allied attacks continued in the battle area Saturday night and yesterday," the communique said. "The battle area was patrolled by our fighters. There was an increase in enemy air activity but our fighters had a successful day, shooting down at least seven planes and damaging many more."

There were indications that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, commander of the Africa Korps, was making feverish efforts to get reinforcements from Europe. Long range Allied fighters intercepted a large formation of junkers-52's laden with troops off Tobruk and shot down four, damaging others. In this operation, two junkers-88 bombers, a Dornier-24 and an Italian Fiat CR-24 were shot down, the communique said.

The big tri-motored JU-52's were Germany's basic bombers in 1935. Now, they are the Nazi's slowest and long have been obsolete except for transporting men and materials. Each plane can carry 18 to 20 fully equipped men in addition to its crew. It also has been used to transport light artillery and motorcycles, and according to some reports, light tanks.

The Allied long-range planes also destroyed an Axis merchant vessel off Tobruk. The ship blew up and disappeared, the communique said.

The Royal and United States air forces were scouring the coast, seeking surface ships that might be carrying Axis reinforcements across the Mediterranean.

The Axis was continuing its attack on Malta, the British fortress-island which dominates African supply routes across the Mediterranean, the communique revealed. An enemy fighter was shot down in a dog fight and two more were destroyed by ground-fire over Malta.

From all air operations yesterday, the communique said, only three Allied planes failed to return.

Typhus Threatens Nazi Army In East

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)—Typhus, the dread disease which is a companion of war, threatens the German army in eastern Europe and already is rampant among civilians and war prisoners in Germany and Nazi-held territory, especially Poland, the office of war information revealed today.

"The gist of the information reaching the United States," the OWI said, "is that a potentially dangerous situation for the German army exists in eastern Europe and that a failure on the eastern front might result in a debacle of great proportions for Germany because control of the disease is impossible under the disorganized conditions of defeat and retreat.

"In short, typhus does not seem likely to beat the German army, but a beaten German army may be brought still lower by typhus."

Italy Says Allies Repulsed At Matruh

ROME (by official Italian wireless)—(INS)—Allied forces attempted a landing from the sea at the Axis-held port of Matruh as a complementary action to their offensive in Egypt, the Italian high command reported today.

It was admitted in a communique that Allied forces had launched "renewed violent attacks" in Egypt where it was claimed 104 Allied tanks were knocked out of action.

The Italian command claimed that the landing attempt at Matruh was frustrated but admitted the loss of one submarine.

Soviets Hold Fast In Stalingrad Ruins

MOSCOW — (AP) — Red army troops held fast in blackened Stalingrad today as the Germans launched another assault after furious artillery preparation and in a fierce engagement which at times developed into hand-to-hand fighting expelled the Nazi forces from a factory property into which they penetrated yesterday, the mid-day communique said.

German infantry moved into the assault in a factory area with tanks leading the way, but the Russians reported that their artillery fire decimated and put to flight an entire regiment of infantry.

The Russians then launched their own attack to drive the Germans from the ground they had gained the day before.

Reports from the front northwest of Stalingrad said that a number of German blockhouses and trenches were occupied, five tanks destroyed and a company of enemy infantry knocked out.

The lull in the Mozdok area of the Caucasus where the Germans are trying to drive to the Grozny oil fields continued, but the Russians said their artillery fire destroyed 20 trucks and a company of infantry.

The Germans threw two divisions of fresh infantry into the Stalingrad battle and backed them up with fleets of tanks and planes, but the Russians, after nine weeks of bloody and tiring siege, continued to slug back at every corner, dispatches said.

Within the city alone, 3,000 of the enemy were reported killed yesterday as the Germans made their advance.

had broken into the cash compartment of a pinball machine in the restaurant, deputies said.

Report of this thievery and theft of money Friday night from the Kell Hardware store in downtown Lexington, coupled with the fact that evidence showed the fire to have started on a rear porch of the china store gave credence to the belief that the fire was of incendiary origin.

Arthur Kell, proprietor of the hardware store, reported to sheriff's authorities Saturday that $12.21 had been taken from the change drawer of the store Friday night. Entrance was believed to have been made through a rear window. Officers found no finger prints, they said.

Basement of the china store was used as headquarters for the Lexington Gun club when trap shoots are held on the grounds at the rear of the burned building.

SLAYER WOULD MARRY IN JAIL

Ex-Husband Asks Ceremony Despite Mandatory Prison Sentence.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Mrs. Eleanor Williams, 25, blonde dice girl who was convicted of slaying her sweetheart, will remarry her former husband in a jail ceremony tomorrow, providing the warden gives his official sanction.

The jail wedding announcement followed Mrs. Williams' conviction for manslaughter yesterday in the slaying of Gordon McNaughton, 32, former Boston Red Sox pitcher, after she had trailed him to a hotel room he shared with another blond.

The former husband, Clarence Williams, a telegrapher, said he wanted to marry her "right away" despite the 1 to 14 years mandatory prison sentence the conviction carried. They have a daughter, 5.

Sunday raiders I saw the American bombs starting mammoth fires in Hongkong and I watched challenging Japanese fighter planes shot down in flames by American bomber gunners and fighter pilots.

The blows by the United States air force were greeted with rejoicing in Chungking and the word on all sides was that the big American aerial offensive was on. All occupied China now is within range of the Allied bombers.

United States medium bombers protected by fighters scattered high explosive and incendiary bombs among the warehouses and ships in Hongkong yesterday, surprising the Japanese conquerors of the British crown colony with the greatest raid yet executed by the China air task force.

Many fires were started in the Kowloon dock area, a communique said.

Japanese fighters intercepted the American formation after the bombing and the American fliers shot down ten Japanese planes and probably destroyed five more. One American bomber failed to return from the mission and a fighter pilot, slightly wounded, made a forced landing in Chinese territory.

Long stretches of the once humming dock area were blown up by the bombers and several ships were hit. Fierce fires were licking at warehouses and other buildings as the American planes headed for their base.

While the bombers were visiting Hongkong, six other American fighters found 20 Japanese fighters in the air over South Yunnan province, southwest China, and shot down three planes and probably destroyed four more without loss of American aircraft. This brought the day's score over China to 13 Japanese planes certainly destroyed and probably nine others.

It was the first time the Japanese conquerors of Hongkong had been attacked in the stronghold since they occupied it last Christmas.

(The Japanese, in their broadcast version of the raid, quoted the government general as describing damage as negligible.)

Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's air task force, in a 12-hour flight Oct. 21, destroyed the power plant and put out of commission a number of the Kailan coal mines 80 miles northeast of Tientsin.

Japan has been drawing heavily on the mines for her industries.

U. S. STEPS UP AIR ATTACK IN SOLOMON AREA

sey, who recently replaced Vice-Admiral Robert L. Ghormley as commander in the South Pacific area.

"During the night of October 22-23, U. S. long range aircraft attacked enemy ships in the Shortland island area of the Solomon islands," the navy's latest communique said.

As a result of this attack the following damage was done: one light cruiser damaged by one direct, and one probable, torpedo hit; one destroyer damaged by a bomb hit; one heavy cruiser (or battleship) possibly damaged by a torpedo hit.

The sinking of a gunboat and damage to three merchant ships by MacArthur's army flyers resulted from the fourth successive daily attack on the important Japanese base at Rabaul from which enemy reinforcements have been moving into the Solomons as well as into the New Guinea area.

Lieut.-Gen. George Kenney, commander of the United Nations air forces in the Australian theater, reported that 80,000 tons of enemy shipping has been sunk or seriously damaged in Rabaul harbor as a result of attacks of the last three nights and an additional 20,000 tons has received "more or less serious" damage.

Proof that U. S. army, navy and marine corps airmen still dominated the skies over Guadalcanal was indicated by the navy communique which reported:

"During the late morning of October 23, our airfield at Guadalcanal was attacked by 16 enemy bombers escorted by 20 Zero fighters. Our Grumman 'Wildcats' intercepted and shot down one bomber, damaged three others and destroyed the entire fighter escort."

Nevertheless, the reinforced Japanese ground units on the island supported by artillery and tanks, made their strongest thrust at American positions on the night of Oct. 23-24.

"During the night of October 23-24, enemy troops, using tanks and heavy artillery barrage, made four attempts to penetrate our western defense lines on Guadalcanal," the navy said. "Our army and marine corps troops and artillery batteries repulsed each attack and destroyed five enemy tanks."

The following morning, the enemy resumed its ground offensive but the fresh attack was broken up by sharp shooting artillerymen supported by aircraft.

The latest American successes boosted to 386 the number of Japanese planes destroyed to date in the Solomons and to more than 63 the total of enemy ships sunk or destroyed. This total is exclusive of damage inflicted on the Nipponese by airmen from MacArthur's command.

Japs Report Air Attacks On India

(By United Press)

Tokyo radio said today that the Japanese air force raided Tensipia and Chittagong in India Sunday and is ready "to attack the British forces in India at any moment."

The objectives, opposite Calcutta on the upper Bay of Bengal, were described as important British air bases.

An imperial headquarters communique said three enemy planes were shot down and 39 destroyed on the ground with loss of one Japanese plane.

Tokyo radio declared that "Japan holds no enmity toward the Indian people" and urged that they move from areas of military importance.

Seek Addresses Of Service Men

Hoping to solve the problem of how to get addresses of persons from Richland county now in service so that Christmas cards may be sent to them, representatives from Navy Mothers, Blue Star Mothers and Colony clubs, members of the Richland Victory committee which is sponsoring the Christmas greeting project, set up a station in the postoffice where any persons mailing packages are asked to leave addresses. Miss Lila Anderson, left, is shown asking Mrs. Frances West, Center, and Mrs. Florence Blunk, president of Navy Mothers' club shown right, just what information the committee wants. After Wednesday, the women will begin addressing cards going to men overseas.

52 JAPS QUESTIONED IN U. S. FOR PROPAGANDA, SPY ACTIVITY

HOUSTON, Tex.—(U.P.)—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents today questioned 52 Japanese aliens about their alleged propaganda and espionage activities.

The Japanese, both men and women, were arrested yesterday with the aid of naval intelligence officers and Houston police in the Houston-Galveston shipbuilding area. The Houston office of the U. S. district attorney issued 66 warrants. R. J. Abbaticchio, jr., F. B. I. agent in charge, did not explain what happened to the 14 not arrested.

Most of those arrestetd were members of the "Lone Star Club," a Japanese organization engaged in widespread propaganda activities and the "usual" attempts at sabotage, a Washington official said.

"This pretty well cleans them out down there," he said.

Members of the club contributed money to Japan regularly, the official said, but since Dec. 7, they have had no way of sending it. Large sums of money and several caches of securities were found in the members' homes.

"This is the climax of an extensive investigaton," Abbaticchio said. "All those arrested lived near shipyards turning out liberty ships and war vessels for the nation's fighting effort, oil refineries and war factories."

While last week's scrap collections at Mansfield schools were being checked today, a two-week campaign was opened in the county's rural and village schools.

Stough said no figures were available today on the results of last week's campaign in the Mansfield schools in which pupils competed for a $25 war bond to be awarded by Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller. Most of the schools, however, had trouble finding scrap because they did such a good job during the two preceding weeks, he said.

The News-Journal trophy for the biggest per pupil school collection during the week of Oct. 12 will be presented to the St. Peter's school at ceremonies at 12:35 p. m. Tuesday at the school. The presentation will be made by John W. Graham, general manager of The News-Journal. Salvage Chairman Stough will participate in the presentation program.

The salvage chairman said trucks were busy today collecting scrap from farms in Butler, Bloominggrove, and Cass townships at the northern edge of the county. Collections will continue in that area most of the week.

gomery, commander of the Eighth army, had announced so calmly at his headquarters a few hours before it started.

Montgomery's Eighth army seemed to pack a knockout punch from the word go. In two years of western desert campaigns, I've never seen the British go to battle with such drive, coordination of effort, and meticulous timing. If all the divisions, brigades and battalions had been linked with one electric clock, there could not have been better synchronization.

Twenty minutes after the first big bang, troops with fixed bayonets crossed the starting line and filed through the corridors of our mine fields. They mopped up the forward enemy posts then waded into the enemy's mine fields.

We fought forward in fairly quick order and stormed the first two mine fields, taking the objectives at bayonet point.

As the Highlanders, led by their kilted pipers, bayonetted and machine gunned their way through wire, mines and strong points, other British troops as well as Australians, New Zealanders and South Africans swung to the attack.

The general advance achieved many points before dawn broke. That will enable the tanks, which followed the infantry, to push through the gaps and engage the enemy's panzers within the Axis main lines.

This was a new departure in desert warfare. Previously, tanks attacked first, to clear the way for the infantry.

From time to time, as I advanced with the Highlanders, we threw ourselves to the ground and dug our faces into the sand as the German artillery replied, rather feebly, to our barrage.

The battle was still going on at dawn. My advance Highlanders had walked for five and a half hours and had covered nearly five miles, two of which were inside the German lines. We had gone through two enemy mine fields but there were still other mine fields, beyond barbed wire, protecting the main positions.

A big battle looms in the coming hours.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1942.

The immediate challenge to all of us is to tighten our belts, buckle down to the job and demonstrate to the enemy that the rumors of American impotence and democratic decadence have been grossly, and for them disastrously, exaggerated.—Everett Case.

Navy Day To Be Fittingly Observed

THIS YEAR'S observance of Navy day will attract much more attention and arouse greater public interest than possibly ever before, due to steadily increasing participation of America's young men in naval action in farflung battle zones.

Depending entirely on voluntary enlistments for increase in personnel, the United States navy has attracted many men in the age range from 17 to 50 for various kinds of service, and recruiting emphasis is now being directed to the 18- and 19-year-old youths who are likely soon to be subject to draft under the selective service law and who, by enlistment, may indicate the branch of service they prefer.

Locally and nationally, the programs for tomorrow's observance of Navy day are more elaborate than at any time in the past, not only as a tribute to what has already been done by navy fighters since Pearl Harbor, and what is now being done by the navy's ships, men and guns on world-wide fronts, but also as an expression of recognition that the nation must strain to the utmost in maintaining and increasing the flow of munitions and supplies necessary to place and keep the navy at the pinnacle of potential strength.

The October 27 date of Navy day results from it having been on that date, in 1775, that the Continental congress received the bill which provided for the first United States navy, and there is the coincidence that this is also the anniversary of the birth of former President Theodore Roosevelt, consistent advocate of a strong navy. Since 1922 observance of Navy day has been sponsored by the Navy League of America.

Last year, when Navy day was observed, little more than a month before the Pearl Harbor attack plunged the United States into war, emphasis was placed on the urgent need of a two-ocean navy, and the course of events since then has demonstrated the wisdom of proponents of that course.

Tomorrow's special recognition of the navy, and the part that it must play in winning the war, does not detract an iota from praise that should be bestowed on other branches of military service—as it is team-work that is vitally essential at this time, and all who participate are stars.

Senate Adopts Delaying Tactics

DISAGREEMENT in congress over provisions of the measure through which 18- and 19-year-old youths will be subject to draft into the army is quite understandable—it reflects the same differences of opinion as to the seriousness of the war that has marked debate on other related subjects before and after United States entry into the war.

Proposal to require a year of military training before any youth drafted from the 18-19 group could be placed in actual combat duty outside the continental boundaries of this country, must pre-suppose continuance of war for more than another year, with ample manpower available in the meantime to meet all needs.

Military authorities, including President Roosevelt as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces, have argued strongly against restrictions which the senate bill seeks to impose, and it is as if civilian legislators sought to overrule military leadership in an important phase of conducting the war.

Inadequate training, at whatever age, imposes added danger on men in service, as was demonstrated in the first World war, but the length of time necessary for satisfactory training to perform various required duties is obviously a matter for decision by men in charge of the armed forces, rather than by politically or sentimentally influenced legislators.

Under the slow processes of congressional action, coupled with the necessarily long procedure of selection, examination, induction and essential training, many more vital months seem likely to pass before this country will make near approach to full fighting strength—and any needless delay can result only in prolonging the conflict, at the cost of more lives than would be required if greater power in men and equipment could be attained quickly.

Congressmen and senators, however well intentioned, should not stand in the way of military leadership of the war program.

Why Expel Those Five Children?

EXPULSION of five pupils from a township school in Portage county, for refusal to salute the flag—because of religious home training—is one of those things that arouses thought.

What responsibility, for instance, rests upon these children who are being deprived of needed schooling because of a peculiar religious quirk of their parents?

If they are like most children of grade school age they probably have an ill-founded but never-the-less commendable faith in the infallibility of their parents—just as political party affiliations, religious beliefs, and even superstitions, incline to pass to successive generations.

In a country that prides itself on broadness of religious tolerance, with protection of inoffensive minorities, however small, it may appear that continuance of patriotic education, rather than expulsion of children acting under direction of fanatical parents, would be a better solution of the isolated cases in which this resistance to discipline appears.

Also to be considered is the "martyrdom complex" by which members of this particular sect are motivated to find satisfaction in what they term "persecution" for their beliefs. It may appear that a school child who refuses to salute the flag, because of un-American home training, might at least be given opportunity for a development of mind that would eventually bring recognition that loyalty to God and country involves no conflict of faith and patriotism.

A news item reveals that "unless some pickers show up, the New Jersey spinach crop will be a failure," which should stir Popeye to instant action.

Offensive In Egypt Helps Russia

—By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

A FULL-SCALE British offensive in Egypt, unquestionably primed with high hopes of routing Axis forces from North Africa, came at a critical moment for Russia.

Coupled with the first onset of winter in the vital Don-Volga steppes on the Stalingrad seige perimeter, it looms as a definite Allied second front operation calculated to compel immediate heavy withdrawals from Russia of Nazi airpower to meet the triple land-sea-air threat across the Mediterranean.

That must lead to Nazi abandonment of the effort to anchor a winter defense line in Russia on the Volga at Stalingrad if the Allied Egyptian offensive is driven home successfully. It well might mean a Nazi retreat on a wide front in Russia, both in the Don-Volga bulge and southward in the Caucasus, if Rommel's African corps is badly mauled in Egypt.

The effect of a swift British advance to or beyond the Egyptian-Libyan border probably would more quickly and decisively influence the situation in Russia than anything else short of a major Anglo-American invasion attempt against the continent from the west.

Even Nazi war bulletins from the active fronts in Russia have been filled for several days with weather excuses for delay. That had already forecast another winter halt for Hitler in Russia short of decisive achievements.

The British offensive in Egypt, this time supported by American airforce units, starts with weather portents in its favor. The best fighting season in the North African desert is at hand. That has been among the factors indicating for weeks that the first strong Allied counter-blow to aid Russia would be struck in North Africa.

There seems no doubt that it is a full scale offensive. Its complete scope and strategic pattern may not be discernible for several days. With Allied aircraft battering at Axis communications far in rear of the land attack jump-off on the El Alamein line and heavy British fleet units turning their guns on key points along the coast, like Matruh, it seems obvious that the first attempt of the Allies is to pin Rommel in the narrow corridor between the sea and Qattara depression for annihilation rather than to drive him back into Libya.

WORD of the Allied offensive in Egypt must greatly hearten the Russians. They were already bolstered at Stalingrad and other points under desperate attack by the close approach of winter. Rain, snow and flooded streams are unquestionably disrupting Nazi supply lines. Any heavy withdrawal of Axis planes or troops from Russia to help Rommel would inevitably prove a signal for redoubled Russian counter-offensive efforts in the Don-Volga corridor.

At that point Soviet forces have been inching their way day by day through the Nazi "barrier" deployment protecting the left flank of Stalingrad's besiegers. A Russian break-through there would be disastrous for Hitler and winter conditions do not impede Russian forces as seriously as they have the Nazi invaders in the past.

Timely Editorial

Forgotten Promise.

What did the war department gain by witholding for six months the news that four American fliers were lost or captured in the bombing of Tokyo?

Did the department suppose that the Japanese didn't know that the casualties had occurred?

Or did the high command fear that American morale would crack if the truth were told?

The bombing raid, led by Brig. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle, took place on April 18. The announcement that four men were missing was not made until Oct. 22 and then only after the Japanese had broadcast the names of the supposed prisoners.

President Roosevelt promised long ago that American public would be given all the news that could be told without aiding the enemy. That policy is not being followed.—Akron Beacon Journal.

Legion Auxiliary Head Tells Reasons For Favoring Draft

(Editor's Note: In the following exclusive article, written for International News Service, Mrs. Alfred J. Mathebat, of Alameda, Calif., recently elected president of the American Legion Auxiliary, supports the proposal to draft 18 and 19 year old youths. Training of the teen age youths, she says, will not only give the U. S. a better army but will insure the return of many thousands of American boys.)

By MRS. ALFRED J. MATHEBAT
President American Legion Auxiliary.

WITH the 18-19-year-old draft being discussed throughout our land, I have been asked many times why the American Legion Auxiliary favors it.

We learned few lessons from the last war, but one the Legion's Auxiliary women did learn was that untrained men did not have a chance in battle. And many of our loved ones sleep in Flanders fields because of lack of training.

In all the succeeding years we have been saying "Never again will American boys go into battle untrained." Now the so-called Wadsworth bill will provide this very training for young Americans. Not only will this give the United States a better army to win the victory, but it will insure the return of many thousands of our boys.

The American Legion spoke very frankly in Kansas City opposing the prohibition issue during the war. No controversial issue should be brought in at this time that would distract us from winning the war. Our enemies wish to divide us into separate groups.

The people of America determined the policy of prohibition and war should not be an excuse for its repeal. We agree with the army that soldiers should not be deprived of rights that are given to other citizens. It would certainly lower the morale instead of maintaining it at its present high level.

Every branch of service is doing a good job training men in this war and the Legion Auxiliary is determined to assist in every way

Interpreting the War News

Vichy Government Nearing Crisis As Hitler Presses New Demands

—By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT

THESE may well be the last days of "the Vichy government," that melancholy group of Frenchmen who, in the faded hotels of an outmoded Spa, tried to erect a synthetic Fascist facade before the ruins of the conquered third republic.

By devious ways the news came out of unoccupied France this week that the colleagues of Pierre Laval, or some of them, practically had packed their portmanteaux, and there was the suggestion that Admiral Jean Darlan, the head of what fighting forces remain under Vichy command, was looking around the African empire for a dark continent capital to which some kind of a government could flee from Vichy.

The reason given was that France is on the verge of chaos because of Germany's demand, through Laval, for 150,000 skilled artisans to work in German factories. Evidently the men of Vichy feel that unless Laval delivers, Germany will kick France while she is down, and kick her hard.

It is not suggested, however, that Laval would go to Africa. Those who plan to do so must have some idea of eventual dealings with the Allies, now so firmly established below the Mediterranean.

Laval cannot have any illusions about his standing with British, fighting French or United States leadership. He has only one road ahead of him, and it leads to Berlin.

What will the Germans do if they fail, as it seems they must, in their attempt to "peacefully" turn France into a nation of share-croppers, stripped of its industrial skill?

It is not necessary that they occupy all of France to throttle the now-hungry nation. They need only to extend the band of occupation along the Mediterranean coast, and France is effectively isolated from the world.

Those in Vichy and elsewhere in France who were sincere in once believing their loyalty belonged to Petain would be trapped. France would be as surely sealed up as is Yugoslavia today, and the Germans would proceed to work their will as they would to any occupied subjugated country.

So it is no wonder if "men of good will" in Vichy, France, and they do exist, are seeking escape with honor. Soon it may be too late.

Gandhi's Non-Violence Policy Dominates All-India Congress

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

LONDON—Sir Stafford Cripps, leader of the house of commons and member of the war cabinet who last spring made an ineffectual attempt to persuade Indian factions to accept the British government's offer of dominion status, has given me in interview turning new light on this dispute which involves the independence of close to 400,000,000 people.

Sir Stafford says the key to the situation is Mohandas K. Gandhi's persistent support of the policy of non-violence.

The point made is that it is impossible for Gandhi's personal adherents to participate in any government, no matter what its nature, which wages war. Thus England, which is in the midst of a life and death struggle, is asked to countenance an Indian government that not only would not fight, but might even insist on making peace with Britain's enemies.

"I don't believe that Gandhi, who wasn't present when the decision was taken, was personally responsible for the rejection of the government's proposal," Sir Stafford added.

"However, his influence and ideas dominated those of the working committee of the All-India Congress, who did turn down the offer. We must have the agreement of the congress for any solution."

Next to Prime Minister Churchill, Sir Stafford is probably the most talked of man in Britain. Many people believe he may one day be prime minister.

Sir Stafford is 53, tall, slim and straight with graying hair. He has an agreeable smile and probably is good looking, though the thing that impresses me about his face is the strength of its lines.

Sir Stafford speaks in the highest terms of Gandhi as one of the great thinkers and leaders of our time.

"I believe Gandhi is quite sincere," he said, "but with his passionate belief in non-violence he must keep the congress non-violent and so non-cooperative with a government which is at war.

"He is the greatest single influence in India, or at least in the All-India Congress. We must have the congress for any complete solution.

"The tragedy of it is from the Indian standpoint that had there been an agreement and had a government been set up through a council with the viceroy Indians would have absolute control of the situation."

I asked Sir Stafford if there still were a chance for a settlement. He nodded but it wasn't a hopeful gesture.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Well, folks, we've all been wrong. I mean about the 77th Congress, Second Session.

That's no name for a race horse, but 77th Congress, Second Session, was running true to form until it got into the home stretch—the pre-election stretch. Since then, Old 77 has been running like a son of Man-o'War, with Whirlaway and Alsab as godfathers.

Nobody thought it could happen here in Washington, but it has. With the November elections only a photo-flash away, there probably are more senators and house members in the Capitol than any time since "national defense" was first mentioned.

Not only that, but congress is taking those controversial hurdles like the man in the barrel took Niagara. A few months ago it didn't take much of a canvass to predict that anti-inflation, the 18-19-year-old draft, taxes and several other things would get no serious consideration until after the elections.

THERE were intimations in pretty high places that congress wouldn't even be consistently in session until the votes were counted. The boys just had to attend the hustings, it was explained. No congress ever had violated that political rule—not in World War I or even in the Civil war when, on still nights, you could stand on Constitution avenue and hear the Rebel yell echo from the hills of Virginia.

Yet when the vote on the 18-19 draft was tallied in the house the other day, a scant two weeks before election, there were 361 members on the floor. Only in the case of the declarations of war have there been more members present in recent sessions.

Both house and senate have been tossing political dynamite around as if there were nothing to it. The wage and farm price control act has become a law and is in operation. True, there was some haggling and the law, as passed, was called "a compromise measure," but it was mostly a matter of saving face.

The tax measure had been knocking around for months, but the suddenness with which it came to a vote took the wind out of a lot of congressional observers.

THERE is, of course, a reason for all this and it's one that I've talked about before. Congress is the mirror of America. Let them know what the score has to be and they'll come through with that tally. Early in the war, it became apparent that a No. 1 order from home was: Stay on the job. It took a while for some members to understand this. They had been taught differently. But by the time a few house members and senators had been renominated without even leaving Washington, it began to sink through.

There already have been some changes made that will be apparent in the 78th Congress. There'll be others when all the votes are in. But it isn't so much a matter of party now as it is of getting the job done as well and as quickly as possible.

Health And Diet

Health Questions Are Answered.

—By DR. CLENDENING

T.V.M.:—What is meant by a disease being chronic? Can chronic diseases be cured?

Answer: A chronic disease is one that lasts a long time and shows no natural tendency to heal, or little tendency that way. Some chronic diseases can be cured (by surgery); some can be controlled, as in the case with chronic anemia, controlled by liver.

V.F.S.:—What are the first definite symptoms of tuberculosis, and if caught early, can it be cured by home treatments?

Answer: Fatigue, afternoon fever, underweight, frequent catching colds, spitting of blood. Most early cases get well under home treatment.

A.M.E.:—Does an anesthetic affect the hair in any way? How long after could one safely have a permanent?

Answer: No harm known to me. You may have a permanent just as soon as you are able to get to a beauty shop after the convalescence.

T. I.:—Would 10 milligrams of calcium pantothenate daily prevent gray hair?

Answer: In my opinion no vitamin preparation has any effect in preventing graying of hair.

M. B. B.:—Is it harmful to eat raw beef?

Answer: Not from a nutritional standpoint, but you take an awful chance on getting trichinosis.

A Farmer's Diary

Country Doctor

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

"THEY'VE put a blue star in the window of our doctor's office—just this morning," an old woman told me, as she held a bony hand to shield her eyes and make certain it was still there. "I guess the name plate and the sign out near the pavement'll still be there when he comes back. That star in the window tells all a body needs to know—and I'm glad the name is there for it makes a person feel comfortable like when they pass along the sidewalk.

"Of course he was just a young fellow, but he came mighty near bein' as good as the oldtime docs! Why, when I wasn't feelin' good last winter, he came in and talked and laughed and said I was in real good shape for a youngster of 80. And sometimes if I'd been in the garden, he'd stop and visit. I told him one day that my garden was worth more'n all the medicine he could carry in that little grip—and d'you know, he believed me, and said when he got sick he'd be over—now mind you!

"When I was a girl, our old country doctor had the history of everybody in the neighborhood. If we saw his horse and buggy tied in front of some home, we could almost tell how sick they were by how long the rig stood there. Of course we all knew if a baby was about to be born . . . that was common knowledge, only we didn't talk about it out loud.

"If the roads were drifted deep with snow the man of the family went to the village and fetched him. I've seen doc and some neighbor come by our house a horseback, many's the time. Sickness ain't what it used to be in them days.

"When my little girl was three—she's sixty now—she got scarlet fever and kept gettin' worse. The doctor came and John, my husband, put his horse in the barn and fed it. There she tossed over the bed and screamed and shook, and choked until she was so purple that I thought she couldn't live.

"The doctor sat beside the bed and didn't say a word. He'd read from one book he'd brought along and then from another—and every little while he'd stop and watch my girl. I watched the expression on his kind old face, but for hours it told me nothing. I prayed silently—and I believe he did too, for the little girl stopped tossing and lay quiet. The doctor seemed to try to help her draw every breath. Then I saw him smile as though it came from a great distance, and he got up and put his broad firm hand on my shoulder and said 'God has been very close to all three of us. Your little girl will live.'

"It was two in the morning, and the rain had turned to snow. He stayed for breakfast."

PROGRAM SET FOR CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR MEET

Afternoon and Night Sessions Will Be Held Sunday In Shenandoah Church.

SHELBY—The Richland County Christian Endeavor convention will be held Sunday, Nov. 1, in the Shenandoah Christian church.

Following registration at 2:30 p. m., the afternoon session will be in charge of the high school and intermediate societies. Miss Harriet Petley of Akron, state high school director, will be the conference leader of this group.

John Morrison of Wooster, state superintendent of stewardship, will conduct a conference for adults on the subject of "Stewardship."

Supper will be served at 5:15 p. m. with an entertainment program to be presented at the table.

The highlights of the evening service which begins at 7:30 p. m. will be a song service, devotions by the Lexington Presbyterian society, special music by the Shenandoah Christian men's quartet, and Rev. W. L. Margard of the Calvary Reform church of Crestline, as speaker of the evening.

Awards which will be presented include a shield to be given to the society having the greatest number of registrations in excess of their membership, and a loving cup which will go to the church, with combined membership of societies, having the largest attendance.

YOUTH GROUPS PLAN FESTIVAL

Richland County Fellowship To Hold Annual Benefit at Franklin Church.

SHELBY — The annual Booth festival of the Richland County Methodist Youth Fellowship will be held Nov. 5 at Franklin Methodist church near Mansfield, Ed Brown of Shelby, county president, announced today.

The various Methodist congregations in the county will gather donations of canned goods, vegetables, linens and other products to be sold at the festival. Part of the money from the sale will be used for the Methodist institution while the remaining part will help sponsor the Youth Fellowship movement.

Several hundred young people and others are expected at the festival from Methodist churches in Mansfield, Shelby, Ontario, Franklin, Pavonia, Butler, Liberty and Bellville.

Following the festival sale, a program will be presented with Capt. Leota Brown of the Salvation Army office at Cleveland as the guest speaker. A ministrel show will be staged by a group from the Lincoln Heights school in Mansfield.

BARBARA MENKES WEDS ROBERT S. ELLISON

Ceremony Takes Place Sunday At Home of Bride's Aunt In Newark, N. J.; Reception Held; Couple to Live In Detroit.

AT 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Miss Barbara Menkes, daughter of Mrs. Charles E. Menkes and the late Mr. Menkes of Newark, N. J., became the bride of Robert Samuel Ellison, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Ellison, 488 Shepard road. The marriage was solemnized at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Adolph Augenblick, in Newark. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Goldsmith of Mansfield are uncle and aunt of the former Miss Menkes.

Rabbi Solomon Foster officiated for the ceremony after a program of nuptial music had been presented by Miss Lillian Kent, organist, and Miss Ruth Freed, soloist. Their selections were "Because" and "Ich Liebe Dich." Richard Menkes gave his sister in marriage.

Mrs. Ellison's wedding gown was of floor length white faille and taffeta with inserts of satin. The edges of the sweetheart neckline and long sleeves were scalloped. Orange blossoms held in place the bride's French tulle veil. She carried a Bible to which white orchids had been fastened. The bride's only attendant was her cousin, Miss Lucille Weintraut of Newark, who wore a turquoise colored gown. Mrs. Menkes was attired in a black crepe dress trimmed with velvet. Her flowers were white camellias. A black crepe dress was worn by Mrs. Ellison, whose corsage was of purple orchids.

When the couple left for New York City, Mrs. Ellison was wearing a raspberry colored dress trimmed with black. Her accessories were in a matching shade. The bride was graduated from a Newark high school and Berkeley School for Girls at East Orange, N. J. A graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, Mr. Ellison attended Hiram college for one year, and received his bachelor of arts and master's degrees from Ohio State university. He is now attending the Wayne university medical school in Detroit, Mich., where the couple will reside.

The Ellison and Goldsmith families of Mansfield attended the wedding.

WILL MEET TONIGHT.

Delta Theta Tau will hold a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Sidney Palmer home on West First street.

Carrick-Swander Wedding Takes Place Oct. 24

A double ring ceremony Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Swander in North Fairfield united in marriage Miss Thelma Carrick of this city and Ralph Swander, jr. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Carrick, 656 Bowman street. Rev. William Power of the North Fairfield Methodist church performed the service at 4.30 o'clock before an arbor of ferns and autumn leaves.

Mrs. Swander's wedding gown was of white taffeta and she wore a finger-tip length veil. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, gift of the bridegroom. She carried a white Bible, gift of the pastor, and a bouquet of white roses and blue baby's breath. Attendants for the bride were her aunt, Mrs. Edward Scheerer of Tiffin, and her sister, Miss Lucille Carrick of Sandusky. Their gowns were in blue and pink taffeta and they carried yellow and pink chrysanthemums.

Raymond McLaughlin of Cleveland, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man. Immediately after the ceremony, a reception for 30 guests was held at the home. Friends and relatives were present from Cleveland, Tiffin, Akron, Mansfield, North Fairfield and West Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Swander will live at 393 Wayne street. The bridegroom is employed by the Commercial Motor Freight company.

HAVE HALLOWEEN PARTY.

A group of Scotch friends were entertained with a Halloween party Saturday night at the W. F. McCartney home on West Fourth street. Dancing and group singing were the diversions of the evening. A buffet luncheon was served at a table which held a large centerpiece of fruit. Out-of-town guests were Miss Elizabeth Watt of Cleveland, and John Brown of Akron.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

A Suit's The Thing For Visiting

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer)

WHETHER you are setting out to cover the rest of the football season in grand style or are planning a trip to see your favorite gentleman of the armed forces at his camp, it's a smart idea to take a tip from the ladies who have already done both these trips in a chic fashion.

From looking over the wardrobes of traveling ladies and football fans, this department has discovered that the popular choice for these activities is a suit.

All in Perfect Taste

Though the selections are wide and go according to the type, age and choice of the girls involved, it is still very definitely some kind of a suit that is worn.

Everything from the classic sports suit to the contrasting jacket and skirt and the more dressy style, is in perfect taste and goes well on balmy days alone or under a cloth or fur coat when the weather gets chilly.

The three different styles shown in the above photographs are all excellent for fall and winter activities.

The outfit worn by Jane Wyatt (right) was designed by Renie. The jacket is made of black and white pin-checked wool. The skirt is in plain black. The suit is cut with a shorter jacket and no patch pockets. Narrow flaps disguise slash pockets. For jewelry Jane has selected a pair of heavy gold clips and fastened them to the outer edge of one lapel. Heavy gold earrings match, and the gold note is repeated in the warm gold color of the furry beaver hat. There's a touch of white in the stitching of both bag and shoes. The gloves are plain black.

Beanie Matches

Bonita Granville (left) has selected a suit of rust and Havana brown houndstooth check with a beanie to match. Her bag and gloves are brown suede, and her opened-toed shoes are brown with brass knobbings. The skirt can be worn with other jackets and the jacket with dresses or skirts, which makes the suit a practical investment for war time.

The third suit (center) follows a new trend for combining materials. In this case it is wool and velvet. The rich black velvet bindings on the suit dress up the soft Hockanum wool. The short nipped-in jacket is fitted, and is one of the accepted silhouettes in both dresses and suits this season. Very large buttons are an interesting feature of the costume.

IDYLL CLUB.

SORORITY TO MEET.

Delta Theta chapter of Delta Theta Tau sorority will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at the home of Sidney Palmer.

Mildred Moxley Becomes Bride Of Ashlander

The marriage of Miss Mildred Moxley of this city, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Popin of Crestline, to Pvt. Charles A. Morrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morrow of Ashland, is being announced. The bridegroom is in the United States Marine corps, stationed at New River, N. C.

Rev. Carl B. Craig, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Jacksonville, N. C., performed the double ring ceremony on Oct. 17. For her wedding, Mrs. Morrow chose a brown tailored suit with white accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias.

Pvt. Morrow attended Ashland public schools and was employed by the Trojan Powder company at Sandusky prior to his enlistment. Mrs. Morrow attended Mansfield public schools and is a graduate of the Dickinson Secretarial school. She is employed by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and will reside in Mansfield for the present.

Vows Exchanged At Napoleon, Oct. 17

Announcement is being made of the marriage of Betty Eileen Harden, daughter of Mrs. A. W. Pittinger, 274 South Main street, to Paul Frederick Johnson, son of William Johnson of Amity. The ceremony was performed in Napoleon on Oct. 17 by the Rev. Martin L. Zschoche at his home. The bride was attired in a beige dress with green accessories, and her corsage was two orchids.

Attending the couple were Miss Frances Pittman and Lamarr Ernsberger. Mr. and Mrs. Pittinger were also present. Miss Pittman chose a powder blue ensemble while the bride's mother wore wine velvet with matching accessories.

Have Stew In Meal With a New Pudding

By BETSY NEWMAN

Housewives have found that honey is expensive when used as a substitute for sugar. Corn syrup mixtures often taste a little flat unless some sugar is added, as corn syrup is not as sweet as sugar. These slight handicaps can be overcome by adding part sugar with the corn syrup and using honey occasionally to supplement the sugar supply. Syrups and honey are delicious and add their own flavors to dishes, as well as helping out in sweetening our foods.

Today's Menu.

Beef or Lamb Stew Vegetables
Pear Salad
Honey Bran Pudding
Coffee or Tea

Honey Bran Pudding.

¼ cup butter
⅔ cup honey
1 egg, well beaten
½ cup milk
½ cup bran
1 cup flour
1 cup raisins
¼ tsp. soda
½ tsp. salt

Cream butter and honey together, add milk, egg and bran. Sift dry ingredients and mix with raisins; add to first mixture. Combine thoroughly and put into greased mold, cover tightly and steam for 2 hours. Serve with hard sauce.

Chocolate Ice Cream.

1 ounce bitter chocolate
⅔ cup sweetened condensed milk
⅔ cup hot water
½ cup cream, whipped
Few drops of vanilla

Melt chocolate in top part of double boiler, blend in condensed milk and stir over hot water until mixture thickens. Blend in hot water, remove from heat and cool. Add small amount of vanilla and chill thoroughly. Fold in cream which has been whipped to soft custard consistency, add the rest of the vanilla, and turn into freezing trays of refrigerators. Freeze, stirring occasionally, until firm. Serve 6.

DELTA KAPPA GAMMA SOCIETY HAS MEETING

THE home of Miss Virginia Howard, 584 West Fourth street, was the scene Sunday evening of a meeting of Delta Kappa Gamma society. Associate hostesses were the Misses Anita Strauch, Margaret Wheeler and Leona Miles. Miss Helen Hartmann, president, conducted the business session. Reports of the state Delta Kappa Gamma convention which was held recently in Cleveland were given by Miss Hartmann and Miss Gladys McDonald. Miss Strauch reported on the October meeting of the League of Women Voters.

The next meeting will be a guest meeting at the Women's Club, at which time Dr. Allan Griffin, assistant professor of education at Ohio State university, will be guest speaker. Dr. Griffin is a former Mansfield teacher.

PROSE AND POETRY GUILD.

The Mansfield Prose and Poetry Guild met Friday evening at the home of Miss Maryellen Bechtel, 271 West Fourth street. After the business session Mrs. Verda Barr read a paper on the life and works of Emerson. Members read excerpts from his poems. Refreshments were served. The November meeting will be with Miss Mae Wilkinson, West Fifth street, as hostess.

Couple Married Saturday, Oct. 24

On Oct. 24 Miss Gladys Marie Perry and Russell Eugene Sheriff were married in Napoleon by the Rev. John B. Taylor. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Perry of East Mansfield and Mr. and Mrs. William Sheriff of Bell street, Bellville, are parents of the bridegroom. For her wedding Mrs. Sheriff chose a dress of green velvet with which she wore brown accessories and a corsage of white baby mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lockhart were the couple's only attendants. Mrs. Lockhart wore a black dress and her corsage was of pink baby mums. While her husband is attending the Signal corps training school in Cleveland the bride will make her home with her parents. She is a graduate of Madison high school and is employed at the Mansfield Telephone company.

HAVE TALK ON HERBS.

A luncheon for 14 members of the Linaeus Garden club was held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel on Friday, Oct. 23. Following this the group went to the Garden Center where a discussion of aromatic herbs was led by Mrs. William Layton. To add to the enjoyment of the discussion members were able to see the various herbs on display there. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. H. M. Spandau on the German church road on Nov. 6.

HOROSCOPE

TUESDAY, OCT. 27

According to the auspicious positions on major planets in today's mundane chart there should be excellent prospects for progress and enduring benefit. While affairs may seem at the start to be difficult and unpromising, with decisive effort, well-organized plans and clever manipulation of opportunities there is every hope of achieving high goals, with cooperation and approbation from the public, from community or from groups.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which their own cleverness, ingenuity and sound and well-developed ideas and objectives may reach high goals of attainment. New projects or novel and original ways of handling old or static situations should thrive. Dare to step off the beaten track. Travel, real possessions, investments and finances should thrive.

A child born on this day may have much ingenuity and creative ability, with novelty, daring, and singular skill.

MR. AND MRS. FOREST A. TAYLOR of Hamilton, Ont., Canada, stayed over night Saturday at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor, Wooster road. They are en route to Zephyrhills, Fla., where they will spend the winter.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I felt as if something icy was coiled inside me as I went around with my father and Dicky to the suite where we had left Stephen Redfield unconscious from Noel's blow and which communicated with my suite by a camouflaged door.

Was it possible, I wondered, that Redfield had already got over the blow and, with bravado inspired by the liquor he had drunk, had come seeking revenge on Noel, or consolation from Mary?

My father knocked lightly on the door of the suite, and Adams, believed by Mr. Milner, manager of the Lansfield, to be his own private espionage agent, but in reality one of my father's most trusted men stationed there as a guard for Katharine and me, opened the door. When he saw us, he put his finger to his lips as he beckoned us inside.

"How is Redfield?" my father asked in muted tones.

"He isn't here," Adams replied in a whisper. "Don't speak aloud. There's a dictaphone in here. I've just found that out from Milner."

"Where is Redfield?" my father whispered.

"Milner took him away to another suite; said he could be given better care somewhere else."

"Was Redfield conscious?"

"Yes. He came out of his swoon right after you left."

"I'll want to hear all about it later," my father said. "Just now I must find out what's wrong in my daughter's suite, where I left Mr. and Mrs. Noel Veritzen. They do not answer, although we have knocked loudly several times."

"I'm sure they're all right," Adams said, "but I think they've had a strong sedative. I was going to get somebody not tied up with Milner to go out and telephone you to come over, just as soon as I could."

My father was already headed for the camouflaged door leading to my balcony suite.

"Lock that outer door, Adams," he ordered, "then come with us. If Milner comes back, I'll tell him I ordered you to help me."

Then my father went on into my bedroom, with Dicky and me close at his heels and Adams following us. As I caught sight of Mary, fully dressed, lying upon my bed, I uttered a cry and ran toward her.

"See if she's breathing all right," my father ordered. "Richard, stay with Margaret unless I call you. Adams, come with me."

He hurried into my sitting room with Adams. I bent over Mary noting with relief that she was breathing regularly, but like one who has taken a powerful sedative, then turned to Dicky.

"I'm sure she's all right," I said. "But where's Noel?"

My father appeared then in the doorway.

"He's in this room," he said sprawled across the couch as if he'd been too sleepy to get any further, but I think he's all right. Is Mary all right? Have you tried to waken her?"

"Not yet, but I'm sure she's all right."

"Try to waken her now," my father directed, "and you Richard, tackle Noel. We'll find out how deeply they've been drugged."

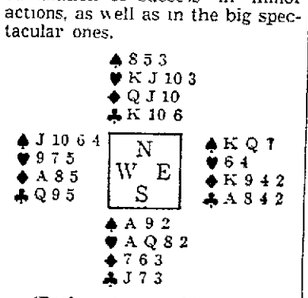
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

In any contest, the winning type of player is usually the one who considers nothing to be unimportant, who gives his best all the time. He is the ball player who hustles just as hard against a tail-end team as against the league leader, the military commander who is just as conscientious about a small skirmish as about a major assault, a bridge declarer who tries just as hard for a contract of 1-No Trump as for a game or slam. Victories of any kind can depend on the accumulation of success in minor actions, as well as in the big spectacular ones.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♦
Pass	1 NT

As soon as West saw the dummy, at one table of a pair duplicate where this deal was produced by the shuffle, he realized that a number of tables would probably furnish heart contracts by North and South, since eight cards of the suit were out, including all of the honors, plus some honors in every other suit. Whether those contracts got made or beaten he could not tell, but at least he had no chance to play against their scores. All he could try to do was beat the scores by others who happened to get into No Trump contracts like his own.

At another table, where West played for 1-No Trump, the same lead was made, the heart 3 and the defenders ran the whole suit. North taking the fourth heart, he switched to the diamond Q at both those tables. Now one careless West saw that he could make his 1-No Trump if South had the club K, as three spade tricks were sure, plus two diamonds and one club. Another club would give him his contract. So he won the diamond with dummy's K, laid down the club A and led toward the Q. It lost to the K, whereupon a spade to the A and the club J set the contract.

Where there was a more conscientious declarer, he reasoned that North would not have led into that four-card diamond holding, probably, unless he was trying to avoid leading from a club or spade honor, or both. He played differently, leading the spade K to the A. The diamond 2 came back to the A, and he chanced a third diamond, which set up dummy's 9. North then led a spade, whereupon three tricks in that suit, plus the club A and diamond 9 made his contract for him. Willingness to do a little simple "negative" card reading had turned the scale.

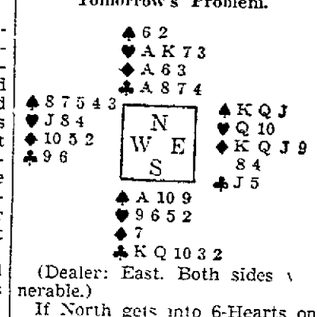
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

If North gets into 6-Hearts on this deal, what principle of defense should tell East the soundest lead to make against that contract?
